Yeah, you're right. I mean, what's so appealing about the idea of getting hitched to some young, supple 20 year old woman from the Philipines with a beautiful face, a nice body, and perhaps a great personality to boot? Go figure...

Muhamed Akhbar does, and he wants to cut off your satellite connection. You probably don't even remember what it is that you did to set him off.

Don't confuse Mark. He cannot even spell Mumahhed, Hmmud, aklebar, mummie or whatever the Hell his name is. Heck, Mark is not sure what a konntun, conteshun, statelight, or flashlight is for that matter.
Don't confuse Mark any more than he is. Now he will go outside and check out his stallight, or satlyte, or dihs for hddins mics that Mumahhed, Hmmud, aklebar putted on his roof. He already hears Steve's voices in his head.

He's probably quite real. His host name (joma.dr.ag) can be looked up via DNS, and it has an IP address of 209.237.241.170. Better inform your next of kin. Akhbar got Todd, and now he's after you. How scary.

Actually, there are various sign languages, often corresponding to national languages, and I've been told that although they tend to have more in common than spoken languages, a person who can speak one can't necessarily understand the others.

Though in a state of society some must have greater luxuries and comforts than others, yet all should have the necessities of life; and if the poor cannot exist,
in vain may the rich look for happiness or prosperity.
The legistlature is never so well employed as when they look to the interests of those who are at a distance from them in the ranks of society. It is their duty

That's what all paranoid people claim. However, in your case you really do have someone after you. First he got Todd; now it looks like he may have gotten Wiseman, and he has publicly stated that you're on his jihad list too.

I would lock all the doors and windows if I were you and hide under my bed. Oops! Ignore that: I just realized it didn't work for Wiseman, because somehow Akhbar got to him anyway.

I guess I sort of got some benefit from the "dumbing down" of the code requirements. I didn't have to do the 20 wpm code to get my Extra (lucky thing too because my code speed is nothing to write home about.)

I don't think the easing of the Code requirements has necessarily been a good thing. It does take some effort to learn code, which in general tends to weed out some that would be less than the ideal candidates. I suppose it weeded out some more desirable ones too, just in a smaller proportion.

Of course the Internet has no entry requirements these days. No test is taken, no skills are required and no special knowledge is necessary. In the fido net days, it at least took some computer savvy to get logged on and post. Now days it is really a free for all as folks have driven off the road of decency just for the fun of it. Chaos takes over, 2nd law of thermal dynamics at work on a macro scale. :)

I suspect that we may see some "moderated" groups popup shortly to replace these "free for all" flame wars we have now. Hopefully this can be arranged in the near future. Once the meaningful discussion is moved to moderated groups, these may just die a fitful death.

Of curse it's almost impossible to remove a news group these days, so I suppose something will be here for a long time yet. Spam and flame wars make such interesting reading.. NOT!

You are claiming that there are circumstances under which CW can be understood but none of the newer digital modes can? Assuming, of course, a skilled operator for CW and appropriate equipment for digital modes. Or even software for both.

49. A Call to All Disaster Communications Operators

Amateur radio operators need to check their emergency equipment's operation ASAP. The final days, long foretold in the bible, will begin this month on date 6/6/6. That's only a few days away.

If the prognosticators are correct, Israel - which has nuclear weapons - will launch a preemptive strike against Iran and the world will eventually be plunged into Armageddon. On 6/6/6, the antichrist will reveal himself, and the spiral into a world wide conflagration will begin.

It is then that amateur radio operators can demonstrate to everyone the true value of the amateur service.

Armageddon: Be there or be square.

OK. I wqas thinking of weak but undistorted signals - there seems to be evidence that digital modes can get through when CW can't even be heard.
Audible but distorted signals, as you mention, are a different problem, one that I wasn't thinking of. Sort of like those distorted letters you have to decypher to gain access to restricted Yahoo groups, GoDaddy domain information, and various other web sites - a machine can certainly see them, but OCR isn't good enough to read them (neither am I, sometimes).

True. I hear the Indonesians are going to raise the cost for AA-size batteries which are currently available at the Dollar General store from 8 to a pack to 4. You know those hams, cheap bastards will get their red lace panties all in a snit over this....they use em in their HT's cause their too tight to buy spare Ni-Cd or NiMh packs.

...actually it's One Month plus six days away, but nobody said you can read a calendar, let alone the bible, so that's why you should listen to the kook preachers on WWCR and WHRI. (Brother Stairmeister was going on about 06/06/06 a few nights ago, as expected. He likes to whip up his audience every now and then while he goes hiding in the out-buildings or trailers on-the-farm to bugger ?)

....at 06:06:06 PM on 06/06/06 I intend to walk out into the back yard buck naked with my lovely 20yo asian mail-order

the garden amongst the eggplants, tomatoes, peppers and marijuhana plants to ensure their fertility and vitality for the comming months.

...Oh pleeeze cut me a break. Hams today can't even solder their own 8-pin microphone connectors when they break from wear, let alone re-crimp the newer CAT-5 style modular ones. That and Field Day is now a shell of it's former self with most hams operation from home on AC because they are too overweight to hoist up an antenna tower in the field for fear of giving themselves a massive CVA in the process.

(of course some will show up at FD just to visit and plunk their fat asses down at the Hospitality Tent to get a few free burgers and sodas before going back home an hour later to sit in front of the FT-1000 and fart loudly in their padded easy chairs and kibbutz on 20 or 75)

We had one guy show up last year who actually waited for the tent to clear out so he could grab about half-a-dozen cans of Pepsi to take home, never mind he could have bought the same stuff at WalMart Sam's Cola for 20 cents a can. Cheap Bastard Douchebag hams.
They be worse than the tight-wad old farts with their magnifiers that show up at the HO Model RR meets who think a rivit on a brass HO model locomotive engine that's off by 3 mils affects the value of the same.

I post on topic more in one week than you do in a year. In fact, so far you have only posted one time in this group that was even close to being on topic, yet you omitted talking about your CBs, which is what this NG is about.

114. FCC WRC-03 Amateur Rule Changes Now in Effect

FCC WRC-03 Amateur Rule Changes Now in Effect
NEWINGTON, CT, May 3, 2006--Several FCC Part 97 Amateur Radio rule revisions to implement changes agreed to at the international level during World Radiocommunication Conference 2003 (WRC-03) now are in effect. The FCC Order, released in January, affects §97.111, Authorized transmissions; §97.113, Prohibited transmissions; §97.115, Third party communications, and §97.117, International communications. The Federal Register published the changes May 3.

"These amendments will ensure that the Commission's Amateur Radio Service rules conform to Article 25 of the international Radio Regulations adopted at the 2003 World Radiocommunication Conference, and will further the Commission's ongoing efforts to streamline its Amateur Service Rules," the FCC Order said. "The overall effect of this action is to update the Part 97 Amateur Radio Service rules in the Code of Federal Regulations to conform to now-effective international agreements."

The FCC Order revises:

§97.111(a)(1) to permit "transmissions necessary to exchange messages with other stations in the Amateur Service, except those in any country whose administration has notified the ITU that it objects to such communications. The FCC will issue public notices of current arrangements for international communications." The old language permitted communication among amateur stations in different countries "except those in any country whose administration has given notice that it objects to such communications."

The FCC said the change does not prejudice its consideration of comments to rule changes it's proposed to §97.111(a)(2) in WT Docket 04-140--the so-called "Omnibus" proceeding that covers a wide range of rule changes and proposals. The Commission has proposed amending that rule section to clarify that amateur stations may at all times and on all authorized channels transmit communications necessary to meet essential needs and to facilitate relief actions.

§97.115(a)(2) to facilitate the transmission of international communications on behalf of third parties in emergency or disaster-relief situations, whether or not a third-party agreement is in place between the US and the countries involved. The revision now permits communication with any non-US station "when transmitting emergency or disaster relief communications" as well as with any non-US station "whose administration has made arrangements with the United States to allow amateur stations to be used for transmitting international communications on behalf of third parties."

The revised rule further provides that no station may transmit third-party traffic other than emergency or disaster relief communications to a station whose government has not made a third-party arrangement. Still excepted from the prohibition is any third party eligible to be the control operator of an amateur station.

§97.113(a)(4) to prohibit amateur stations exchanging messages with amateur stations in other countries from making transmissions that are encoded for the purpose of obscuring their meaning, except for control signals exchanged between Earth command stations and space stations in the Amateur-Satellite service, something Part 97 already provides for. The old rule referred to the use of "codes and ciphers."

The same rule also already prohibits transmitting music, communications intended to facilitate a criminal act, obscene or indecent words or language and false or deceptive messages, signals or identification.

§97.117 to state that amateur stations may transmit communications incidental to the purposes of the Amateur Service and to remarks of a personal character.

The FCC also revised §97.3 and 97.309 to update the definition of International Morse code and of various digital codes in the amateur rules to reflect changes in the Radio Regulations.

According to the FCC, the WRC-03 Final Acts revised the international regulations that apply to the Amateur and the Amateur Satellite services and became effective July 5, 2003. The Part 97 revisions that become effective this week now bring the FCC's Amateur Service rules into conformance with the international Radio Regulations.

What's the purpose of ham radio, To have fun talking about rigs and weather, or to be able to communicate?

To be able to communicate when no one else can communicate and to advance radio knowledge & theory?

What does part 97 say about this? Why does the ARRL ignore it?

When CW is lost, new hams will be just like CB'ers and SWL's, or some other lower life form of radio hobbiest. You name it.

You wouldn't remember this because you were just a CB'er then, but during the first major restructuring, the ARRL gave a six dollar membership discount to new hams and upgraders that passed the new dumbed down exams. The six dollars was the amount it took to take a test at a VE session that year.

I should be able to keep this from getting to me, but sometimes I just feel like responding to the attempted intimidation by these elitists.

Mate, your key is only silent from the neck, up.

Due to dyslexia, I am unable to learn much Morse Code. I can consistently recognize about half of the alphabet and none of the numbers. Morse Code might as well be edoC esroM for all the good it will ever do me.

In spite of this, I manage to be a responsible member of the ham radio community and I'm damn proud of my service to RACES, to my club as its treasurer and to the county as a volunteer communicator. My UHF/VHF points in last year's Field Day exceeded the points of our HF stations combined.
Lower life form, indeed! The nerve of you!

You may get down off your high horse (or should it be "High Morse"?) and apologize for all those jabs any old time it pleases you. I'll be here.

Here's one that I haven't even seen:

Not everyone speaks readable English, but anyone that knows Morse can copy any language and read it at their leisure. Also, those who don't speak English well can often spell the words well enough to read...

Just a thought.

In order to graduate school in the Navy we had to both read a punched teletype tape and read morse code. I don't recall how fast the code was but the test day was a bitch!

CW sub-bands?

47 CFR 395(a) "An amateur station may transmit a CW emission on ANY

For USA Amateurs CW is authorized as stated above.

If you really believe that morse code is an important way to communicate that should be preserved then you need to convince other hams and potential hams to learn the code. You need to convince enough hams to use code so its very usage generates excitement and makes people want to join in the fun. Almost self-perpetuating like it was in the 1950's.

Preaching (or complaining) to the choir on the radio fora about the abysmal state of things will not add one person to the ranks of key pounding hams.

So what are you going to do to increase the number of code practicing hams.

CW will not be lost in the same way that AM is not lost.
A lot of hams in the 1950's believed that SSB would cause the death of AM and ham radio along with it. SSB operators sounded like Micky Mouse and were known as Single Sidewinders, undesirable snakes in the grass within the hobby, and traitors
to the traditional form of amateur radio AM communications.

If you are in the US you do not need to look at any diagrams. Just get a book that has the question and answers in it. Then memorise it. They are the exect question and answers.
That will put you to the Tech license and the code may soon not be needed for the low bands.

Well, "SC" a.k.a. troll,

Cw, when it came along, was frowned uopn and was predicted to be the death of ham radio as well. Did you know that?

Modes currently around that full knowledge of is NOT required to get a licence (where complete knowledge of sending and receiving all the characters in Morse is a requirement):
AM, SSB, RTTY, PSK, Paclet, Amtor, APRS, satellite...basically everything else in Amateur Radio!

I said full knowledge. Do any of the tests require explanations of all five (or is it ten) methods (circuit types and how they function) of generating SSB or how to generate CW...or proper operating practice in all situations?

Do you know WHY knowledge of Morse was required in the first place?

I think there should be more on the tests on operating practices. I know some Techs who can do much of the above and make better hams that any old fart crying over the supposed loss of CW. I know Extras who couldn't copy code worth a darn, nor do much in the way of tech stuff...so? They're all friends.

Your fingers and eyes (or ears) aren't broke... so why aren't you out mentoring new hams? In the last two years, how many programs have you written for helping hams with things like blind hams controlling rigs or or audio tapes on radio operation have you recorded for blind hams or trips to help a blind ham erect an antenna, do a small project or program his radio or cables you've given to a new ham for his antenna or taken a blind ham to a hamfest... Why am I wasting my time with this...pfffvt

I'll save you the trouble, I'm a 60 year old, 20 WPM Extra and currently spend most of my ham time on 2 & 440 from the car during drive time on repeaters (much more omitted)!

I didn't have to learn code in the Navy (though I did happen to already know it)

Jerks are everywhere and I wonder why I wasted this time. Guess I just needed a little vent...sorry folks..time for lunch.

Yep! I stand corrected!!
5330.5 KHz USB ONLY, Maximum band width 2.8 KHz. 50 watts ERPd max.
5346.5 KHz USB ONLY, Maximum band width 2.8 KHz. 50 watts ERPd max.
5366.5 KHz USB ONLY, Maximum band width 2.8 KHz. 50 watts ERPd max.
5371.5 KHz USB ONLY, Maximum band width 2.8 KHz. 50 watts ERPd max.
5403.5 KHz USB ONLY, Maximum band width 2.8 KHz. 50 watts ERPd max.

And, "I dare not call it a 'band'" either. Just 5 channels occupied by gentle men and gentle women, both genders, with manners.

I have three rigs that operate '60' meters. I've gotten to love that non-band.

I'm fearing it will be Eminent Domain ham radio style.

They'll see spectrum that they don't have the ability to use, because there will be no requirement to have that ability. They will want the spectrum for phone. One good thing, there are other modes besides CW that need it, so maybe they won't take our CW portions and give it to phone only hams and appliance operators.

Thank you.

In a way, it's sort of like sign-language. Two people that don't know each others tongue but know sign language can still communicate.

Thank you for your service to America. It is people like you that make us a great country. When hard work was needing to be done and learned you were there.

Today people are lazy and that's why they want to get a license in as easy a way as possible, even if it means the service and our ability to communicate with each other suffers.

Call the FCC, email the ARRL. Tell them you don't want to see ham radio dumbed down anymore, for the good of the service and the good of country.

But it's the lower qualifications that will cause the service to suffer. I don't think new general class hams today have as much of a grasp on theory as new ones did 15 years ago. 15 years ago, they spent more time studying the theory while they were building their code speed up.

Loss of the requirement to be code proficient though could be offset if the passing score on written the exams were raised to 85%

Yes, but can you send and receive Code at 13 or 20wpm?

What if in an emergency your microphone broke, and the only thing you had to save a life was CW? With your skills, that person would die. In that situation you'd be about as useful as two tin cans and a piece of string.

Right, that's the service nature of hams. Hams helping hams, and hams serving the community. And Dumbing it down can effect the quality of service. Maybe it won't go totally to shit while you and I are still around, but it will happen. In Life, What happens when standards are lowered, things get better?

Outcome based licensing.

There's a lot of us that feel that way.

Actually your own words have proven that you can learn it. You say you can consistently recognize about half the alphabet. So you have demonstrated your ability to learn it.

Perhaps you just haven't spent enough time on it or used a poor training method (there's way too many of those around). Most people's expectations of how long it will take are unrealistically short. For the average person, it will take 1/2 hour per day every day for 60 days.

Now writing it down could be a problem due to dyslexia but there are ways around that. You don't have to write it down. You can ask to be allowed to say the characters into a tape recorder. You could dictate the characters to a VE to write down for you. You could simply jot down notes and answer the questions and not worry about solid copy. Again if there is a risk of writing it backwards, you could have the VE write down what you tell him/her. Naturally such accomodations have to be set up in advance.

You are painting with a very broad brush. There are many amateurs who do not jab the Technicians. These days the membership of most clubs is about half Technicians. Perhaps you need to run with a different club.

Well, with the 4 or 5 CW signals that are on most bands at any given time (except VHF and up during contests, BTW), who would notice the loss. No offense, but if CW ops want to keep the territory, they'd better start populating it.

Yup, that increased the number of CW ops by a lot. Typical old style ham response. Moron. Pure and simple moron.

This is why CW is losing the battle. Not because it's a lost art, or something that's not worthwhile, but because the "supporters" do nothing but complain.

I don't want to see CW go away; I think it's a "good thing", and should stay around, especially for things it still does well, such as EME. Of course this is not the place to speak of "advanced" things like EME, after all, it's only been around for 50 years.

Dumb argument.

CW is only being removed as a compulsory exam element. Oddly enough, now that it is not compulsory, it's popularity is growing!

Which is most likely, actually. We broadcast a lot more voice than CW, Ever noticed how many watts of television, FM radio and AM radio are out there versus CW?

CW is effectivly dead except for those that wish to keep it alive.
Similar to the old car collectors. Nothing wrong with it. beautiful collector items, but not really part of the current world.

My $0.02: Passing the CW element requires the acquisition of a skill.
Passing the "written" element requires memorizing answers to a test where the answers are handed out ahead of time. Some accomplishment, eh?

Thank you.

If I may add something to that...
I wouldn't like to see Morse totally disappear, but I'm against its compulsion for trainees. I fully agree that in some conditions a Morse tone will get through where voice is an unintelligble mush, if heard at all, but apart from prisoners tapping out messages on pipes its days as an essential comms tool are pretty much over.

We've all got to move with the times and these days Morse is on a par with a runner carrying a message in a cleft stick. There will be some who enjoy using it and I hope they find enough fellow enthusiasts of the arcane art to keep themselves happy while the rest of us communicate more naturally.

CW is just memorizing the sounds . That is not a skill. Yes, I do have the 20 wpm extra. Got up to speed, passed the test, never used it on the air.
I still listen to some about once a month just to see if I can still get any of the characters.

A skill is more like repairing a piece of equipment or building something.
Maybe even the ability to put together an interisting conversation instead of the usual WX and Signal reports.

228. Total meltdown?

Following thoughtful article seen on another medium.....

Amateur Radio Newsgroups: Total Meltdown
Paul W. Schleck (K3FU) on April 26, 2006

Way back in 1972, before there was a World-Wide Web, even before there was Usenet News, amateur radio enthusiasts on the then-ARPANet organized a mailing list known as Info-Hams. In 1979, a couple of researchers at Duke and UNC developed a system that used "Unix to Unix File Copy" or "uucp" to copy files from one system to another, to make a broadcast bulletin-board system called "Usenet." The Info-Hams mailing list eventually gatewayed to this system, becoming fa.info-hams (fa = "From ARPANet"), then rec.ham-radio, then rec.radio.amateur.*.

Fast-forward to the present, and the newsgroups rec.radio.amateur.misc and rec.radio.amateur.policy are now in complete meltdown (the *.antenna, *.dx, *.equipment, and *.space newsgroups still seem to be in good shape, though). Both forums are almost completely bereft of any topic discussion. Instead, one can find run-on threads consisting of short, sniping, and personal attacks containing obscene language from what must be fewer than a dozen, mostly anonymous, users.

What happened? -- Maybe too many run-on arguments about code, or attacks on individual ham's personal character. Maybe just the anarchy and Tragedy of the Commons that is encouraged by totally-open, unmoderated forums where no one is obliged to obey any rules, and no competent authority seems able or willing to enforce them if there were any. Further fanning the flames are free, and anonymous, news posting sites like Google Groups, Yahoo, etc., as well as any news site that simply doesn't care to enforce any net etiquette among its users. Some hams have even offered the explanation that better enforcement of amateur radio regulations by Riley Hollingsworth at the FCC has had the unintended consequence of driving problem hams off the bands and onto a less restrictive forum to wreck.

As for Google Groups, it certainly deserves credit for archiving most newsgroup discussions since 1981 (thanks to old backup tapes meticulously maintained by Henry Spencer at the University of Toronto), but also a big raspberry for contributing to this problem.

This hasn't happened to every newsgroup. Even though other newsgroups have trolls, there seems to be a "immune system" of constructive users who step in both to ostracize problem users, and continue positive contributions in the face of such troublemakers. Certainly this behavior is not tolerated on web logs such as qrz.com and eHam.net. The site owners simply would not allow it. There is at least one example of a licensed radio amateur who is Dr. Jekyll on the blogs, but Mr. Hyde on rec.radio.amateur.policy. There may even be others.

I'm sure some would argue that Usenet is obsolete, and we are all better off going to moderated blogs. Still, I can't help but think that something is being lost here. For example, 20 years into the future, will we be able to read archived and indexed articles from most web logs that exist today, as we now have with Google Groups? Are there constructive solutions to the meltdown on rec.radio.amateur.*, such as converting newsgroups to moderated status, even if such moderated status is simply a self-approval, or anonymous user filter, mechanism?

Here are some follow-on comments by the same author (K3FU), also copied from the same "other" medium

RE: Amateur Radio Newsgroups: Total Meltdown Reply
by K3FU on April 26, 2006

Thanks for everyone's comments, both here, and on QRZ. I admit that my article was intended to initiate preliminary discussion to start a formal proposal to moderate some of the amateur radio newsgroups on Usenet. Already, I have two other interested volunteers. I would welcome additional interested people to E-mail me before I contact the Usenet Group Mentors. These mentors would assist with any Request For Discussion (RFD), and possible Call For Votes (CFV), on news.groups and rec.radio.amateur.misc/policy. Again, this is all preliminary. I welcome good feedback from experienced Usenetters, particularly the Usenet Group Mentors, in the development of any proposal.

When I say "meltdown," I don't just mean that problem users exist, or that people post opinions that are on-topic to amateur radio with which

I or others disagree. I mean that probably less than a dozen problem users have nearly 100% taken over the misc and policy newsgroups with their postings. Whatever "immune system" the user community had previously - that was able to overcome, or just ignore, these problem users - has completely broken down. What I mean by "problem users" is that their posts are almost entirely short, sniping, and profanity-laden, personal attacks against each other, with no topic discussion. Nearly all of the posters are anonymous. Many of which are likely "sock-puppets" (i.e., various alter-egos of the same individual), posting from a small number of anonymous posting sites like Google Groups. A situation exists where virtually all constructive users have been run off and the misc and policy newsgroups have become a total write-off, serving as nothing but bad public relations for our hobby (service, whatever).

My reading of Usenet newsgroup creation rules, and newsgroup threads discussing those rules, indicates to me that an existing, unmoderated newsgroup can be converted to moderated status. In fact, I believe that comp.infosystems.www.authoring.cgi is an example of a formerly unmoderated newsgroup that became moderated (though "moderated" only in the technical, implementation, sense; see more below). I believe most people agree that with the distributed nature of Usenet newsgroups and independent news servers, it is nearly impossible to have a newsgroup deleted. Even if it were possible, might even be seen as a cure worse than the disease. Moderating the existing newsgroups in place, rather than new newsgroups, is justified in the face of the existing, unmoderated, misc and policy newsgroups becoming totally damaged write-offs at this point. I've been in touch with the Usenet Group Mentors already, and one of them tells me that they wouldn't refuse outright a proposal to convert the existing newsgroups, but they would prefer instead to have a proposal that makes one or more new newsgroups with the *.moderated suffix (e.g., rec.radio.amateur.moderated).

Yes, it is possible to reach problem users, even in unmoderated newsgroups. Most ethical ISP's have rules against using their services to "stalk," "threaten," or "harass" someone. Some even prohibit "off-topic" or "disruptive" postings to newsgroups, even unmoderated ones. Google Groups actually had conditions like these as part of their user policies in the past, but quietly dropped them. Google apparently doesn't care anymore, and thus serves as the source for most of the trash. Recently, I was able to get a problem user shut down, or at least got him to stop posting to rec.radio.amateur.policy and rec.radio.cb, but only because his ISP had ethical user policies and a willingness to enforce them. (Hint to the shut down user: It doesn't help your case to go on record in traceable Usenet postings that you don't feel obligated to follow any rules, including FCC regulations and your ISP's user agreement, even bragging publicly about the specifics of how you violated them on a willful and ongoing basis.).

Such enforcement efforts are time-consuming and can only catch the grossest violators posting from the most ethical sites. At the end of the day, such efforts are more work than just implementing moderation in the first place. Moderation serves as much as a deterrence as a filter.

Users know better than to step too far beyond the pale on eHam and QRZ, so the workload of their moderators is minimal. Moderation shouldn't be an ongoing battle beyond the initial implementation and fine-tuning.

Moderation would consist of a very light hand, and simply to deal with the small number of abusive, beyond-the-pale, posters and their anonymous sock-puppets. If it's not obscene, not illegal, not an ad-hominem attack, not a threat, it is on-topic for amateur radio, and not part of a stale thread that has already been beaten to death over a reasonable period (say, two weeks), it should be posted. It might be necessary for the moderators to start the thread on the right newsgroups (policy vs. misc vs. rec.radio.swap vs. rec.radio.info), but that should be about it. One issue that would certainly be open for discussion would be that of anonymity. The "last name or callsign" rule from QST classified ads would be ideal. The use of a real E-mail address would be encouraged (and would be helpful to send moderator's replies). But,

I suppose that some consistent use of a unique, well-known nickname and/or obfuscated E-mail address, used without intent to deceive, could be accommodated. With a team of moderators, and some automation techniques, moderation should not be an overwhelming workload.

There are several newsgroup examples to choose from, not all of which require ongoing, close, manual review of hundreds of articles per day by a single moderator. One, sci.physics.research, has submissions sent to a central E-mail address, that then forwards each submission randomly to one of their team of moderators. The recipient decides whether it's appropriate to post, based on agreed-upon objective criteria, and posts

the article to the newsgroup. Another newsgroup, comp.infosystems.www.authoring.cgi, is fully automated. Moderation in that case is simply to deflect first-time posters with an autoreply containing references, including an FAQ list. The second (and subsequent) posts would go right through. Even some traditional, single-moderator newsgroups like comp.dcom.telecom have moderators that will simply shut down a thread after everyone has reasonably had a say, but before it degrades into personal attacks or off-topic discussion.

Some hybrid of all of these techniques could work for rec.radio.amateur.misc and rec.radio.amateur.policy. Heavy use of automated E-mail filter tools such as Spamassassin and Procmail would weed out from the moderator submission queue nearly all SPAM, problem posters (checking the harder-to-forge headers like NNTP-Posting-Host), and obvious profanity/obscenity. This would leave a much smaller batch of articles to be manually reviewed in a "service" queue by a team of moderators. Turnaround on articles should be less than 24 hours. This would be quick enough to keep discussion lively, but not so fast that impulsive, cascaded flame wars full of ad-hominem attacks are allowed to grow. I believe that filtering of rogue sites and problem users can be done surgically enough such that constructive users won't be shut out, or unfairly delayed, just because they are posting from Google Groups, for example. It should also be possible to "white-list" verified posters with good conduct, either placing them in a priority queue for cursory review, or even posting their articles immediately (this concept is similar to how "Karma" is implemented on slashdot.org, for example).

This would further reduce the moderation workload, and serve as an incentive for good behavior.

Whatever filtering, and submission queue management, schemes are used can be adapted in the face of new or changing threats. In terms of any automated "black-listing," it should even be possible to deal with violators on a flexible basis (warnings, suspension, only using permanent expulsion as a last resort in the face of gross, repeated,

and willful violations). The existing first-time poster welcome message service for rec.radio.amateur.*, in use since 1996, can also serve as an ongoing monitor and cross-check. Specifically, it would measure the amount of "sock-puppeting" that might be occurring to try to game any automation, and get around moderation restrictions. Large numbers of new, throwaway, anonymous addresses would result in a statistically-significant surge in "new" posters being sent the welcome message, for example. After a while, the problem users will just give up and go elsewhere, preferably off of Usenet entirely.

I don't think it is as effectice on SSB. Of course, you can use the symbols that were derived from CW (like QTH) but I think morse code is a more direct communication in these circumstances because it doesn't involve voice/pronunciation differences between languages. The symbols are universal and immediately understood.

Phonetic usage (alpha bravo whiskey hotel etc) is primarily based upon English.

I think we need to face the fact that ham radio, in general, is not as necessary or as "needed" as it was even 20 years ago.

It's a hobby. It remains a service but it is a hobby.

CW,SSB and any other mode you choose is not that much NEEDED.

CW being the simplest form, remains the form of choice when ALL infratructural resources are gone.

Memorizing a sound is no more of a skill than memorizing an answer. In any case. I can memorize sounds. I can't memorize answers. I have to know the subject to get the answer right. If people think that CW is of any importance, they will learn it whether the test requires it or not. Those who think that it will die if it is not required are just afraid that it really is useless.

Until the FCC pops your stupid ass for unlicensed transmission. Then when you have to send an explanation to Hollingsworth and or pay a fine then you'll get what you asked for. Here's to hoping that you get your ass busted for getting on there with your stupidity. Frankly, if you want to mess around on CB or Freeband, I certainly don't give a damn.

The FCC can find you in quite a rapid time if you're causing problems, it doesn't take them long with their newer monitoring technology to obtain a fix on your location.

I have an 85-year-old uncle who was a cw operator in the Pacific in WWII. He hasn't done anything with cw since 1946, and he can still copy around 10 wpm when I make him a bet.

I can go for several years without hearing cw and still step in and copy 15wpm easily.

Those of you who once passed 20 wpm tests and now find it a challenge to see if you "remember any of the characters" are simply not very bright.

Any rational evaluation of the modes available will show that there is a combination of circumstances that make a specific mode the one that will "get through". One can "prove" that their favorite mode is the one that will get through under certain conditions.

This is a very predictable post from the indivdual involved. It also pretty much ignores the details about how Usenet moderated groups have traditionally worked.

First mistake: It is for all practical purposes not feasible to turn an unmoderated news group into one which is moderated. Instead, you need to create a new, moderated news group such as rec.radio.amateur.policy.moderated. You have to hope that the news servers which receive the control message which creates the moderated group process the message properly. Many news server admins simply think that moderated groups really don't work well, and they ignore such messages.

That's because moderated Usenet groups have mostly been a failure.

Why? It was trivial to spoof the standard moderated groups in the past by supplying your own Approved header. Right up through the middle 1990's, people who understood the basics of Usenet could easily post to any moderated news group, completely bypassing the moderator's control. I know: I used to post to a couple of moderated news groups by supplying the header "Approved: of course" and the posts would appear in spite of any moderator (c.f. alt.2600.moderated).

After the advent of asymmetric key authentication (such as that used by SSL/TLS or GPG), there was an attempt to harden moderation by requiring that approvals be cryptographicaly signed by the moderator.

Similar requirements were put on cancel and rmgroup control messages.

Unfortunately, neither approach really worked. The Usenet server admins weren't particularly interested in adding crypto capability to their servers, and the method foundered. Even now, if you take a look at control.cancel, you'll see that most cancel messages do not use any kind of public/private key authentication. They are mostly in the original format first used by Usenet back in the 1980s.

Mr. Schleck, in spite of his claims to a long tenure on Usenet, seems to misunderstand its technical details. He also wants to deal with problem news groups by asserting control over them so that people "do it his way."

And that completely ignores decades of Usenet history.

For decades, Usenet readers have been admonished to take responsibility for cleaning up news groups into their own hands. Such responsibility is carried out by means of local filters (a kill file in the old terminology). If you don't like what you see, drop the poster or his whole domain into a kill file and be forever done with him.

I've been successfully killing 99% of the junk posts in rrap/m while allowing the useful posts to get through. It isn't rocket science; it doesn't require moderation, but it DOES require the kind of technical ability that hams supposedly possess.

Go out and download the free Xnews or slrn news readers (the latter runs on all popular OSes) and learn how to get rid of the junk posts instead of expecting someone else like a moderator to do it for you.

Don't let the control freaks like Schleck attempt to have their way (BTW, he's in my kill file and has been there for years). Make a serious effort to take responsibility for what you read yourself.

I have seen PACTOR II get through from Europe with 10 watts when there was no humanly detectable signal. All I did was choose the correct frequency and time based on a schedule.
I detected absolutely no carrier on the S-meter or with my ears in CW mode. The PACTOR II signal was literally down in the noise but my SCS PTC-IIe somehow managed to dig it out.

Frank takes on the Illegal Alien marches of last week, asking, if it was practical to send Elian Gonzalez home, or sent troops to attack the Bonus protestors of WWI, why is it not practical to send the illegals home? Simple: they were organized by Marxists to spit in the face of America.

Frank also concludes that blacks, as a political power in American politcs, are now irrelevant. As proven in the last political elelction, the black vote proved to be nil. And as the illegals flood in, the blacks will become less and less relevant to the political issues. They followed hate mongers like Jessie Jackson and Al Sharpton like lemmings off a cliff. Even some blacks are actually saying this and are realizing this.

I did set up my controls and sent a number of folks to the trash bin.
Unfortunately, almost nothing was left. There is little discussion around these parts about amateur radio policy.

Perhaps I am missing something here, but I suspect that when the number of flames reaches a certain level, serious folks simply leave the newsgroup.

Rec.radio.amateur.misc was a trash bin 4 or 5 years ago. Perhaps 3 years ago, rec.radio.cb went down the tubes. This group has been a mess for the past year or so.

As to control freaks, I prefer that folks drive on the right side of the road here in the U.S. Some rules appear necessary to protect the majority of users.

Whilst the thought of a moderated group does not particularly appeal to me, I would be open to options that would get a newsgroup back to a semblance of what it was designed for. Kill-filing offenders leaves you with nothing around these parts today. Take a look in this newsgroup right now.

seems like "Dr Death the radio joke" spends a lot of time wondering about who engages in homosexual acts. Then somebody admits to such acts and "Dr Death the radio joke" begins to make threats to the person who engages in such acts. "Dr Death the radio joke" acts like he(she) is stuggleing with some sexual issues.Now this is the same "Dr" who admits he's too stupid to become a no-code tech, but maybe the good (gay) "Dr" will go get some dick at the local truck stop. This may help "Dr hapless-homo" stop being so hostile in these groups and stop with the threats.

no no no, you got it all wrong.
HR NG's have gone to shi+ because Hollingsworth wanted it that way.
After he cleaned up the major players of the 14.313 mess that went on un-checked for over 20 Years, followed shortly by a clean sweep of the 75 Meter clownss, RH made several statements to the effect that "..all the former QRM'ers
he didn't get should go to Usenet where they can play
all day via the keyboard and clear off of Ham Radio".

Guess what......THEY DID JUST THAT.
(...including me too - I was the "Dancing JP Chicken" from 14.313 for many Years. Drove Herbie nuts.
Loved every minute too. Another person on RRAP, who I will not reveal, is the legendary "Spongeboy-Bucketmouth" which the late Mike 'MUJ made famous)

So - they you go boys - and we used to say:

It is nonsense in rec.radio.shortwave. Please drop this news group from the thread.

Another thread about CW is pointless. You guys have posted the same

Dee, please go back and re-read Silent Key's original post and my response.
I was reacting ONLY to that one person's remarks. I was actually narrow-brushing.

While I'm an officer in just one club, I am in three and none of them have any crummy people -- and I certainly agree with you that many amateurs don't jab the techs. In fact, I encounter practically total acceptance. That's why Silent Key stood out.

With regard to can/can't learn, I have the most problems with the characters that are four or more elements long. dit-dah-dah-dit and dah-dit-dit-dah are different, but I can't tell you what they are. I think one of them is

"P" because I remember the symmetry.

Transcribing is not the problem. If I hear dit-dah, I can write A. But if I hear dit-dah-dah-dah-dah or dah-dit-dit-dit-dit, I don't know what to write, because I don't know what those are. I cannot store the memory of what those sounds mean. Since you (apparently) don't have the problem, you won't relate.

And it isn't a lack of time or effort. I have been at this since 1993. Many methods. No appreciable successes. (I did get "D" from "dog-did-it" and "Q" from "pay-day-to-day" -- a couple of real triumphs, eh? [sarcasm intended])

This is no picnic. Thanks for understanding.

It is nice to see the absence of posters such as Todd Daugherty, Roger Wiseman (AB8MQ) and others. Here is hoping they do not return. With their passing comes a new breath of fresh air and, hopefully, no more gutter talk. It has been reported, in case you care, that Todd lost his account due to the cartoon kiddie porn he was posting. It has also been claimed that AB8MQ is suffering from Leukemia and while that may not be true, his absence is also welcome. He offered nothing save for his usual filth.

Now, hopefully, we can move forward and discuss Ham Radio issues. I wonder how Glenn Baxter is faring?

Amen!

I used to be a staunch defender of CW. We lost the 20, we lost the 13, we are going to lose the 5.

In today's age of materialism, self created rights and the liberal ideals of fairness, I'm just waiting for the removal of all testing requirments.

Just show up, mark A, B, C or D on 10 questions (no grading, just turn it in) and then get a certificate of attendance, a blue ribbon that says 1st place and a 1x2 vanity call sign.

That is correct. Let's just take a very simple example. PSK is one of our newest digital modes. When there are auroral disturbances, PSK cannot be used. The phase shifts induced by the auroral activity make it impossible for the computer to read. These phase shifts effect all the modes. Modes that depend on phase shifts (such as PSK) are affected the most severely and quickly become unusable. On the other hand, CW takes on a buzzy, raspy sound but a human operator can still decipher it although a computer will fail. I have personally experienced these conditions. If the auroral induced phase shifts aren't too severe even SSB will get through when PSK has failed. I have also personally experienced this.

Let's take another. This time packet. Packet has nearly died out on HF because it is not robust enough. Conditions have to be almost perfect for there to be a usable packet signal. Even low levels of atmospheric static make it unusable. Slight fading also causes problems. Yet voice, CW, PSK, and RTTY will all cope with conditions that can make unusable.

Each mode has its strengths and weaknesses. For each mode, there are conditions for which it will be the best choice and conditions for which it will be the worst choice. If a person wants to maximize their communication capabilities, they need to become conversant with each mode, its characteristics, and what affects its propagation. For CW, this should include learning to copy by ear. Under some conditions, the human brain is the only computer powerful enough to decipher it.

If you were in this area, I would be more than happy to take a try at teaching you. The "dog-did-it" approach is one of the worst possible ones to use. It is like trying to count the dots and dashes. On longer letters it can be a problem.

For someone like yourself, it is absolutely essential that you eliminate any and all extra translation steps. The burst of sound should register directly as a letter. In other words, hear it as a letter and reflexively write a letter. Then it doesn't matter if you happen to know the actual number of dots and dashes. No counting, no "dog did it", no "helpful" memory devices at all. They will only hinder someone like yourself.

> This is no picnic. Thanks for understanding.

Well I just wish that I could take a stab at teaching you. There is always a sense of accomplishment in expanding your abilities in ham radio. For example, in the past couple of years, I've been exploring the digital modes and VHF/UHF propagation. It's a hoot to work Texas on 2m from here in Michigan.

Complete nonsense. CW testing is being phased out because CW is becoming obsolete, period. Don't try to read anything more into it than that.

With all the great new digital modes available - most of which are far superior to CW - forcing people to waste valuable hours learning an obsolete mode is sheer folly. There are so many great things to do with Amateur Radio. Do them!

Quite correct Bill. Commercial and military have dropped Morse code for the very reasons you stated.

In this day and age, requiring proficiency in Morse code for a radio license would be as requiring proficiency in horse husbandry in order to get a driver's license.

OK folks. All I hear is whining about how things are changing. So I'll ask the question again.

If you really believe that morse code is an important way to communicate that should be preserved then you need to convince other hams and potential hams to learn the code. You need to convince enough hams to use code so its very usage generates excitement and makes people want to join in the fun. Almost self-perpetuating like it was in the 1950's.

Preaching (or complaining) to the choir on the radio fora about the abysmal state of things will not add one person to the ranks of key pounding hams.

So what are you going to do to increase the number of code practicing hams.

Don't you find it odd that people need to be "convinced" to use morse?
Nobody needs to be "convinced" to use PSK31, RTTY, SSB, FM or even AM.

Life is too short to waste it "convincing" people to use a mode they are instinctively not interested in.

The underlying problem is you want things to be like they were back in the '50s. Well, I was licensed in 1957 and I had fun back then too, but time marches on. Try marching along with it.

Actually if you go back and re-read the entire message I think that between the lines you might pick up that I think these guys are living in the past. CW is all but dead and buried. All professional users of consequence have abandoned it.

I have the same problem with the code. My brain wants to identify or count the dit/dahs and then translate them into the character. Learning each character as a quick burst of sound, as if it were sent at an equivalent speed of perhaps 20-wpm, is probably the best method.
I never got beyond about 10-wpm after practicing on and off for many years, sometimes for months at a time. I used to listen to the code practice transmissions on W1AW every night. If the 'General' code requirement had been 3-wpm less, I might have been a ham' decades ago but I wanted HF phone privileges or nothing (stubborn me). I didn't have any interest in getting a Technician license or being a Novice until it expired because of my code limitations. I don't think learning the code has much to do with intelligence or even motivation to a certain extent.
Some folks are just not wired for code. I could have passed the Extra exam' in the days before the questions were available to be memorized but that 20-wpm was the problem. I tell myself it was amateur radio's loss. :-)

In the olden days, the purpose was well understood. It was, and still is, to become proficient in one or more aspects of radio communication, to provide a skilled base of technically proficient people who pursue an interest in some aspect of radio communication technology and art for personal gain without any financial interest, reward or compensation from the activity.

It is NOT to open a box, plug it in, connect a wire, and, when it doesn't work, get on the internet and ask for help.

I advocate for a code test for the following reason. I value what I have to plan for, work for, sacrifice for, and invest my time for.

I value the reward for 18 months of practicing Morse Code every night for one hour a night. That's an investment.

I value the reward of studying, really studying, to understand the electronics for my Technician License. That's an investment.

I value the reward of studying, really studying, to understand the electronics for my General License. That's an investment.

I value the reward of studying, really studying, to understand the electronics for my Advanced License. That's an investment.

I value the reward of studying, really studying, to understand the electronics for my Extra License. That's an investment.

It took me 45 years to progress from Novice to Extra. [Note: I was 25 wpm CW proficient in the 1960s. Marriage, Family, Profession took priority over Ham Radio.]

I teach Ham Radio classes. I'm a registered ARRL instructor. I'm not invited to teach too often in these days. I DO NOT teach Q&A. I WILL NOT teach Q&A. I teach understanding of what's behind the Q&A.

My Technician classes begin with ELEMENT 1. It takes 3 to 4 weeks at two hours a week for classes to pass Element 1. It takes 10 to 12 additional weeks of a two hour class one night a week plus homework to pass the Technician exam.

Those who choose this path have made an investment of their time and effort. I hope they value that investment.

I WILL NOT support a 4 hour session on a Saturday morning and hooray! You are now a ham!!!

BTW, FWIW, I'm still learning from the skills and experiences of Roy, Cecil, Rick, et al on the antenna n.g.

/S/ Dave, W1MCE

You could have shortened that up considerably. Short version: "I did it so everyone else should have to". See how easy that was? Not an original idea though.

The only problem with the EEs that I run across, is they know just enough to get themselves hurt and/or burn their homes down when they try to work with ELECTRICITY instead of electronics. It seems that at 240vac, all their common sense goes out the window.

That is exactly the point I was trying to make. If one is content to turn off the radio and not communicate at times when signals are distorted, then various modes become less important. But I prefer to be able to communicate as long as possible. Thus I consider it part of my goals as a ham to be as conversant with as many modes as I can. I have setup and operated the digital modes, including building my own sound card interface (even though I don't normally attempt soldering), just to gain experience in them even though I have no real interest in operating them per se. Pounding away at a keyboard is too much like the internet or my job.

To clarify, specify the conditions, and the "best mode" becomes evident. With distorted signals, CW wins with voice coming in second. With weak signals, some digital modes win with CW coming in second. For power consumption for a given signal strength, the digital modes come in last since you must have power to run the computer. And the power to run a computer alone (depending on the computer) is often more than enough to run a 100w CW or voice signal. So you add the digital signal and the digital modes become "power hogs."

Every mode has value.

Dave, W1MCE, BSEE [ElectriCAL Engineer]

Never worked as an electriCAL Engineer. Designed transistors for almost four years. Designed USAF Flight Line Test Equipment for six plus years. Designed USAF Computer Controlled Avionics Test Equipment for 10+ years. Spent 3 1/2 years as Field Engineer at Hill AFB, UTAH on Computer Equipment. Worked for 7 plus years on the Effects of Nuclear Weapons on USAF strategic assets. Spent part of three years at the Nuclear UGT facility in Nevada. Spent 6 plus years as Chief Engineer on the USAF MX Missile RS/RV. Finished up as System Engineer on the RF Subsystem Force Modernization for the MK21 RV. In between, I managed the Strategic Product Design, Electronic Department for three years, now retired.

I still have my text books on HV transformer design, Generator Design, Fluid Dynamics, Thermo Dynamics, three phase power distribution, etc. around here somewhere ... I hope.

My VP Engineering, to paraphrase his judgment, claimed: "Give me an Engineer with a good Physics background and a good Math background and I can put him/her to work anywhere. In three months [s]he will be blunder proof, in six months competent, in 12 months expert." After 30 plus years of engineering I conclude he was correct.

But, I've left BSEE behind me. I retired from my profession six years ago.

And, as my wife says; "You can take the engineer out of engineering; but, you can't take engineering out of the engineer." I'm still learning from highly gifted people like Roy, Cecil, Reg, etc.

I'm still practicing my Vocation ....

CW, you are incorrect. I VALUE my license because it took effort over many years. The issue is valuing your license because you invested time, talent and energy into obtaining it. The more you invest, the more you value.

If you read the full message you would conclude that the message is about investing and reward of investing. It is not about a 4 hour cram short term memory program that yields a Technician License without the KNOWLEDGE of how to build a 1/2 wavelength dipole with coax to connect to the new out of the box toy.

When I read posts regarding 'how to ...' on some basic aspect of Ham Radio I wonder about the training, education, understanding, that went into 'studying' for that license. IMO, the license should indicate a level of proficiency that, in many cases, is missing. When I hear an EXTRA CLASS ham on twenty meters asking someone what the difference is between USB and LSB, we have a problem in training and education.

I don't know if Ham Radio will degenerate into glorified CBers. But, for many it has become a hobby of appliance operators.

If you really believe that morse code is an important way to communicate that should be preserved then you need to convince other hams and potential hams to learn the code. You need to convince enough

hams to use code so its very usage generates excitement and makes people want to join in the fun. Almost self-perpetuating like it was in the 1950's.

Preaching (or complaining) to the choir on the radio fora about the abysmal state of things will not add one person to the ranks of key pounding hams.

hams.

CW is and might be around forever for identifiers in different things.
It can be transmitted along with voice and doesn't get in the way of other things. Any loss would be the best fun I had during my Amateur Radio Service and learning Radiotelegraph Second class training. I even found a code chart at the RF desks at a NASA MSFN tracking station when I worked there. Just in case!

Fascinating! We have here a perfect example of a functional illiterate who was able to obtain a Ham license. Of course he would not like CW as one must be able to spell, and construct simple sentences, which is obviously beyond him.

Amateur Radio Newsgroups: Total Meltdown
Paul W. Schleck (K3FU) on April 26, 2006
View comments about this article!

Way back in 1972, before there was a World-Wide Web, even before there was Usenet News, amateur radio enthusiasts on the then-ARPANet organized a mailing list known as Info-Hams. In 1979, a couple of researchers at Duke and UNC developed a system that used "Unix to Unix File Copy" or "uucp" to copy files from one system to another, to make a broadcast bulletin-board system called "Usenet." The Info-Hams mailing list eventually gatewayed to this system, becoming fa.info-hams (fa = "From ARPANet"), then rec.ham-radio, then rec.radio.amateur.*.

Fast-forward to the present, and the newsgroups rec.radio.amateur.misc and rec.radio.amateur.policy are now in complete meltdown (the *.antenna, *.dx, *.equipment, and *.space newsgroups still seem to be in good shape, though). Both forums are almost completely bereft of any topic discussion. Instead, one can find run-on threads consisting of short, sniping, and personal attacks containing obscene language from what must be fewer than a dozen, mostly anonymous, users.

What happened? -- Maybe too many run-on arguments about code, or attacks on individual ham's personal character. Maybe just the anarchy and Tragedy of the Commons that is encouraged by totally-open, unmoderated forums where no one is obliged to obey any rules, and no competent authority seems able or willing to enforce them if there were any. Further fanning the flames are free, and anonymous, news posting sites like Google Groups, Yahoo, etc., as well as any news site that simply doesn't care to enforce any net etiquette among its users. Some hams have even offered the explanation that better enforcement of amateur radio regulations by Riley Hollingsworth at the FCC has had the unintended consequence of driving problem hams off the bands and onto a less restrictive forum to wreck.

As for Google Groups, it certainly deserves credit for archiving most newsgroup discussions since 1981 (thanks to old backup tapes meticulously maintained by Henry Spencer at the University of Toronto), but also a big raspberry for contributing to this problem.

This hasn't happened to every newsgroup. Even though other newsgroups have trolls, there seems to be a "immune system" of constructive users who step in both to ostracize problem users, and continue positive contributions in the face of such troublemakers. Certainly this behavior is not tolerated on web logs such as qrz.com and eHam.net. The site owners simply would not allow it. There is at least one example of a licensed radio amateur who is Dr. Jekyll on the blogs, but Mr. Hyde on rec.radio.amateur.policy. There may even be others.

I'm sure some would argue that Usenet is obsolete, and we are all better off going to moderated blogs. Still, I can't help but think that something is being lost here. For example, 20 years into the future, will we be able to read archived and indexed articles from most web logs that exist today, as we now have with Google Groups? Are there constructive solutions to the meltdown on rec.radio.amateur.*, such as converting newsgroups to moderated status, even if such moderated status is simply a self-approval, or anonymous user filter, mechanism?

It's a little early to be positive, but it appears that you are getting your wish. For the past 10 days, the flaming has died down considerably. I now only see a handful of posts killed as my newsreader opens this newsgroup. Two weeks ago, 50 or 60 posts would be nuked each day, and almost nothing would be left behind.

Moderation (censorship) replaces one problem with another. If some people think that moderation is a good idea, then they should have the common courtesy to let the newsgroup users make a choice between this newsgroup and a new, moderated group. Only the users can decide which option is best for them.

Attempting to "take over" the current group in order to force moderation on its regular users is not only unlikely to work (too many news servers will not respond to the control message), it is also arrogant. The person proposing the moderation is not even a regular here any longer. According to Google's profile, he has made a grand total of four posts to amateur radio news groups for the entire year of 2006!

Whoever you are,
I believe you will find this in the book about the early days of amateur radio. It is called something like "200 Meters and Down", or is it "Below".
ARRL has it and many ham stores do. I have a copy and have difficulty remembering the exact title. A really nice read. I also have a 1932 ARRL handbook and I think there are references to the "doom of the advent of CW" in there also.

. You, of course, know about spark. The sparkies didn't like CW and, at that time, the FCC __DID__ out law it (spark, that is).
I admit that it was a loaded question because CW stands for Continuous Wave and what differentiates it from" Spark". Probably not what the troll wanted and I know he/she/it wouldn't respond, but did it anyway.

The FCC Outlawed 'Spark' for very valid technical reasons at that time and they are still valid today. The very same logic could be used to still justify the continued use of CW
as an Amateur Operating Mode; even though the requirement for proficiency in CW is not used for an Amateur License.

My arguement for CW has never been from the perspective of getting more ops. It's the quality of the operators I'm concerned about, not quantity.
A code requirement may mean someone will study the theory portion a little more while they're building up their code.

One day, when you turn on your HF or VHF/UHF rig and it sounds like CB, you'll understand where I'm coming from.

I'm going to drop this agrument because it looks like I lost and people really don't care anymore one way or the other, but I'll end it with just couple questions to all;

What is one behavior on our ham bands that might or could make you loose interest in ham radio and leave if you heard it or if it became previlent?

And does it seem like it's going that direction?

So, are you asking if people are getting rude, using foul language and don't seem to give a crap about each other? If so, yes, they are. The sure cure for that would be to increase the code requirement to 30 words per minute for general. Faster for extra. Along with that, NO license of any kind without an engineering degree. This all wouldn't do anything about lousy operators. What it would do is reduce the number of new hams. After a while, we would be down to 100 or so nationwide. The bands would get much better because there would be virtually no one using them. Something that you seem to have failed to consider is that society in general is adopting these traits you find objectionable. New hams tend to be more objectionable (under this criteria) than old. Is it because they didn't spend hours studying code? No, it's because they are products of the society they live in. Americans are known worldwide as pushy, arrogant, self centered bastards. There is a reason for that, they are.

My point was that few people here think beyond the dipole, quarter wave vertical, or shortened mobile vertical. And all of those for HF. The group is broad minded in many ways, but very narrow in others.

No license without an engineering degree would be fine by me. And follow it by one that requires complete knowledge of the National Traffic System. Which would be more inportant by far if you want to keep the traditions up.

How many here know how to pass traffic properly? Bet I can draw a line in time. And it had nothing to do with license class. I was a tech at the time. But I learned how to pass traffic, and how to be net control as part of the NTS. Because I had people on our local nets that enforced the rules. On checking in, out, and passing traffic. Traffic up into the system, and down to the final recipient.

That, my friends, was the difference. Not CW.

It's actually a good thing when folks come over from "the Dark Side". When new to Hamdom it's almost certain they'll slip up and occasionally use their old "jargon". When they correct themselves it's also a good thing, since it means they are aware of their faux pas and are working at improving their operating procedure and language.

Whilst the thought of a moderated group does not particularly appeal to me,
I would be open to options that would get a newsgroup back to a semblance of what it was designed for. Kill-filing offenders leaves you with nothing
around these parts today. Take a look in this newsgroup right now.

I understand the issue here with moderation. Where I'm not going to start quoting form "1984", I agree that heavy handed moderation is unlikely to get you something that anybody wants to read as apparently the open to everything buries the good stuff in too much noise that nobody wants to sift though.

But the problem here is much like the trade offs in good receiver design. To much bandwidth, to much noise to hear the desired signal, not enough bandwidth and you will loose valuable information. Right now we have a first IF that's way to wide and the meaningful stuff is lost in the noise. Imagine trying to hear that CW signal when you have to hear everything for 6Khz? You can do it, but why go though the pain? Why would you try to listen to a SSB conversation with the 500Hz CW filter in place?

Of course it all has trade offs. I'm not so sure that a bit of bandwidth reduction might not be useful on this group. I'm a bit tired of the flame wars myself however any attempt to do this must recognize that disagreement (while not being disagreeable) is a good thing.

I almost missed this post, because you're one of the people who posts as "hot-ham-and-cheese," etc. that I have killfiled by IP address range. I turned my filters off to take a look at the unfiltered group, and your followup turned up.

Since you are probably part of the problem (your news reader and IP address both match those of a flooder from the Cincinnati area), there is no point in replying further. More than likely, you weren't looking for a serious reply anyway. Back into the killfile you go.

Oh, I think people think about them. They probably just don't talk about them as much. You think I'm stuck to HF? Wanna come look at my latest 144 yagi that is nearly as long as the f/b width of my house?
"30 ft boom"
Seems I just commented about rat shack UHF antennas yesterday if I remember right. I usually talk about what other people talk or ask about..
To tell the truth, I'm about bored with the whole mess, and don't post
as much about any kind of antennas as I used to. I've got so many sticks in the fire lately, ham radio is just one wee small area I mess with. And I'm getting more and more bored with it every year. I used to be able to do 55-60 wpm on CW in the late 80's.
But due to my lack of activity the past few years, I'm slipping down to snail pace CW. Now I can only do about 35-40 wpm, and it gets a bit slower every year. If you want to talk about different topics, it's up to you to start them.
We can't read your mind on the internet...

Your own words on blogspot imply that your ISP suspended your account for a while. In any case, your ISP clearly objected to your distasteful bbs, and it went away. Then, as your post shows, your IP suddenly changed to a new, resolvable address. Did you lose your static IP after being reinstated by CTI?

Wiseman, Stagger Lee has outed your plagiarism and your ISPs so often

You can't tell Morkie that.

Morkie insists that others use it as a "weapon", yet he's the one who persistantly trashes the Amateur NG's about "sexualty" issues and refuses to just let it drop. He's been told this over and over, yet HE is the one who continues it.

He LIKES being 'abused'...

Morkie still doesn't get it.

No one really cares about his "sexualty". I've seen the fatboy, and if there's another "man" that "wants" that, well then all I can say is that neither one could have had much self-respect to start with! I try to keep an open mind about other's "preferences", but poop on the peter has got to be about the most disgusting thing I can envison. If Mother Nature wanted it that way, there'd be one hole, not two.

What MATTERS (to me, anyway...) is that when someone else "outted" him over it, he had been (A) bragging about "morality" and "ethics" issues, and then (B) tried to lie his way out of it...and got CAUGHT!

Now he BRAGS about HIS lying and his intent to teach his children (God forbid this creep procreates) how to lie.

Morkie's been offered more help than the Red Cross, Salvation Army, FEMA, and any 10 United Nations's relief organizations together could possibly offer, but he spurns any suggestion that HE needs help.

We suggested "euthanasia" but it took Morkie a week to realize that we were NOT talking about adolescents in China!

Speaking of leading to a good paying career, if you're going to learn a skill, how about learning typing instead of Morse? Get on RTTY or PSK31 or one of the other digital modes and develop a useful, saleable skill. There isn't an employer in the world today (except possibly the ARRL) who would be impressed that you know Morse, but lots would like it if you could type.

well,dr death is quit the asshole. my only point was he (she) appears to be obsessed with you. now if dr death is gay or bi, i couldn't care less. it's none of my business who does what to who.

i think dr death fucks with you so much because he (she) is trying to deal with those homosexual "urges" he (she) is trying to supress. then when he (she) makes threats or implies a fight would solve the problem
it's just a cover up for his confused sexual feelings.

the silly asshole probably doesn't even know why he continues to seek
you out.

indeed i don't care about his orientation either I don't even mind others knowing i am bisexual I do feel that issue is better adressed in another forum but the Dr and fred and wismen and robeson are so obessed

very likely, at least that is the opo phych view and likely aplies here

well,dr death is quit the asshole. my only point was he (she) appears to be obsessed with you. now if dr death is gay or bi, i couldn't care less. it's none of my business who does what to who.

i think dr death fucks with you so much because he (she) is trying to deal with those homosexual "urges" he (she) is trying to supress. then
when he (she) makes threats or implies a fight would solve the problem
it's just a cover up for his confused sexual feelings.

the silly asshole probably doesn't even know why he continues to seek
you out.

If I remember properly, it was a L O N G T I M E A G O, didn't Katashi Nose, KH6IJ, learn to copy RTTY at the Hawaii station?

He could certainly crank CW. He spoke at a meeting of the local radio club in the mid 1950s [Yankee Radio Club, Salem Massachusetts]

Gosh, if I remember properly, I'm getting OLD. Now if I can find my driver's license I can figure out my birthday!

RHF,
My point was ...this time the FCC is NOT eliminating nor *Outlawing CW.
(as far as we know)
Spark did suck, but even so there were those that hated CW.

ARRL threw principle out the window when they caved in to the demands of the Lambda Amateur Radio Club (LARC). It was a sad day for me indeed when I opened my beloved QST magazine and there on the pages were photos of queers on a Tropical DXpedition, and in living color no less. The ARRL wanted us to embrace a sick perverted lifestyle and be one big happy family. To me, it was the spark that signaled the death of a once proud organization, and it turned liberal.

I chalked it up to a new op happy about working a new state. I remember having the same feelings he had when I was first licensed. I worked all states on CW before I ever made a voice contact because Novices weren't allowed phone priviledges when I got licensed. It was a blast and helped my code speed so I could upgrade to general with little effort.

My problem, a lot of new ops aren't leaving old CB operating practices behind. That is what will destroy ham radio, The CB like behavior.

It must be human nature, when you get something for nothing, you don't appreciate it as much, or try to take care of it the same as something you had to work for. That's why dumbing down ham tests is bad. Having a license doesn't mean anything.

I'll bet you try to pass yourself off as a Christian.... I guess you never really learned some of the most important lessons.
The first lesson is to treat EVERYBODY with the same courtisy and respect that you expect from them.

What I don't get is why we are forced to see homosexuality in areas that have nothing to do with sex, such as the example you mentioned.

>What is one behavior on our ham bands that might or could make you loose >interest in ham radio and leave if you heard it or if it became previlent?

None. I have fairly thick skin, and I'm rarely bothered by anything that happens on the air. I do have a VFO ya know... IE: tuning knob for all you without an EE... But like I say, I'm pretty bored lately, I don't get on the air near as much as I used to. The boredom has nothing to do with the people on the air. It's from farting with the same basic stuff since I was in jr hi school... I don't get much thrill anymore.. Only about 3 clicks above talking on a telephone. Which I hate btw... Ham radio at the house is too easy. No challenge anymore.. I turn it on, and yak.

Wow...
If it wasn't for mobile/portable operating I would be about radio dead.
At least there is still some challenge in that area... IE: trying to put out
a decent signal with shrimpy antennas, low power, etc..
Yea, I've tried all the digi crap too, before I get 90 people telling me to get with the modern techniques....PSK31, SSTV, etc, etc, ad nausium..
I'll do it for two weeks, and then the boredom sets in... I kinda got into SSTV, but PSK31 bores me to tears... Did I say I generally hate to type...

>And does it seem like it's going that direction?

I see no difference from what it's been the last 20 years or so, except there are far fewer CW ops on the air lately. I tuned 40m CW the other night,
and didn't hear a single QSO... And I'm talking the lower CW section, not the novice band.. But do I whine? Nope...Times is a changing, and there is not much I can do about it. The argument that CW weeds all non hackers is total BS... All it weeds out are the CW lazy, not the troublemakers.
A dedicated troublemaker will pass any tests needed if that's what it takes to stir it. You should have heard 75m in the early -mid 80's...

All had to pass code tests in that period. 75m is actually cleaner now, than it was then. Mainly due to Hollingsworth cracking his whip a few years ago.

Even more amazing is that no matter who starts the thread about CW, the same group of people will post the same tired old reasons about why CW is still a useful screening tool for prospective hams and how CW is still an important way to communicate. And they do not want to hear about the world as it really is in the 21st century.

If I had the time at the house, I would have invested more time and $$$ in the shack that what I did in my service truck.

For the most part, I am only able to get on the air mobile from mid march until after the first frost. I am a heating and a/c contractor in south Mississippi....8am - 9pm work days, 5+ days a week doesn't leave much time for anything else.

Not too much of a problem with enough money.... When I am on the road between calls, if I want to talk, I am going to talk, even though most of the time I am listening. Like I said earlier... I have more invested in the mobile station in my service truck than I have in the shack.

I spend too much time on the 'puter already, and FWIW, I was on packet in '84 with a C-64, and a homebrew modem, and customized my own software for it.

I have been active recently with teaching a class for folks to get their licenses and part of it is CW. Being here in south Mississippi and only about 60 miles from the gulf coast, we are very aware of the communications limitations and what works an what doesn't when the lights go out. CW is only another weapon in our arsonal of communications tools......keep in mind that not much works when there is NO infrastrucure left intact.

For isolated characters, a good ear could probably differentiate them with 22 millisecond and 20 millisecond bit times (45.5? and 50 Baud).
I had a friend who said his uncle could do that.

But if the characters ran together, especially with a 1 or 2 bit stop time, your brain would have no way to seperate them. Neither can some simple hardware decoders.

more gay postings.....then they blame "an old friend" for the sexual shit in the groups. seems like "an old friend" only defends himself and it's all of you sick-fucks that start the bullshit. yep, you hammies use "an old friend" to cover your own sexual desires that you have not learned to deal with. "an old friend" does NOT spam. he only defends himself from the insults. code or no-code? who gives a fuck? i really don't.....but it sure does piss off alot of you idiots that code is going away. so, i hope it goes away and the written test becomes even easier. that is funny as hell!! the only real difference between ham & CB is the number of frequencies and modes available. Oh, and the fact that Cb'ers that become hams seem to make a better class of ham.

I just passed my tech exam and am looking forward to the CW test. It certainly exercises a part of my brain that seems to need that kind of excercise. I'm glad it's still a requirement.
It all seems to balance out.

501. 30 Steps, reposted for new hams and those that didn't do well on their writtens.

The 30 Steps below will help all New Hams, it will also help you to find others just like yourself. These 30 steps should also be added to the present writtens.

Step One: Use as many "Q" signals as possible. Yes, I know they were invented solely for CW and are totally inappropriate for two meter FM, but they are fun and entertaining. They keep people guessing as to what you really meant. I.E. "I'm going to QSY to the phone." Can you really change frequencies to the phone? QSL used to mean, "I am acknowledging receipt", but now it appears to mean, "yes" or "OK". I guess I missed it when the ARRL changed the meaning. It is also best to use "OK" and "QSL" together. Redundancy is the better part of Lid-dom.

Step Two: Never laugh when you can say "HI HI". No one will ever know you aren't a long time CW rag-chewer if you don't tell them. They'll think you've been on since the days of Marconi.

Step Three: Utilize an alternative vocabulary. Use words like "destinated" and "negatory". It's OK to make up your own words here. I.E. "Yeah Tom, I "pheelbart zaphonix" occasionally myself."

Step Four: Always say "XX4XXX" (Insert your own call) "for I.D." As mentioned in Step One, anything that creates redundancy is always encouraged. That's why we have the Department of Redundancy Department. (Please note that you can follow your call with "for identification purposes" instead of "for I.D." While taking longer to say, it is worth more "LID points".

Step Five: The better the copy on two meter FM, the more you should use phonetics. Names should be especially used if they are short or common ones. I.E. "My name is Al... Alpha Lima" or "Jack.. Juliet Alpha Charlie Kilo." If at all possible use the less common HF phonetics "A4SM... America, Number Four, Sugar Mexico." And for maximum "LID points", make up unintelligible phonetics. "My name is Bob... Billibong Oregano Bumperpool."

Step Six: Always give the calls of yourself and everyone who is (or has been) in the group, whether they are still there or not. While this has been unnecessary for years, it is still a great memory test. You may also use "and the group" if you are an "old timer" or just have a bad memory. Extra points for saying everyone's call and then clearing in a silly way "K2PKK, Chow, Chow."

Step Seven: Whenever possible, use the wrong terminology. It keeps people guessing. Use "modulation" when you mean "deviation", and vice-versa.

Step Eight: If someone asks for a break, always finish your turn, taking as long as possible before turning it over. Whenever possible, pass it around a few times first. This will discourage the breaker, and if it is an emergency, encourage him to switch to another repeater and not bother you.

Step Nine: Always ask involved questions of the person who is trying to sign out. Never let him get by with just a "yes" or "no" answer. Make it a question that will take him a long time to answer.

Step Ten: The less you know on a subject, the more you should speculate about it in the roundtable. Also the amount of time you spend on the subject should be inversely proportionate to your knowledge of the subject even though you have no damn clue.

Step Eleven: Always make sure you try to communicate with only a handheld and a rubber duck antenna. Also, make sure you work through a repeater that you can hear very well, but it cannot hear you. This will put out a kind of "LID mating call": "Well, Joe, I can hear the repeater just fine here. I wonder why it can't hear me?" You will score maximum LID points if you are mobile, and with the radio lying in the passenger seat.

Step Twelve: If you hear two amateurs start a conversation, wait until they are twenty seconds into their contact, and then break in to make a call, or better yet to use the auto-patch. Make sure you keep the repeater tied up for at least three minutes. This way, once the two have re-established contact, they won't even remember what they were talking about.

Step Thirteen: You hear someone on the repeater giving directions to a visiting amateur. Even if the directions are good, make sure you break in with your own "alternate route but better way to get there" version. This is most effective with several other "would-be LIDs", each giving a different route. By the time the visiting amateur unscrambles all the street names whizzing by in his mind, he should have moved out of the range of the repeater. This keeps you from having to stick around to help the guy get back out of town, later.

Step Fourteen: If an annoying station is bothering you, make sure your other "LID" buddies have a "coded" frequency list. Even though "CODES" are strictly forbidden on Amateur Radio, it's really neat to practice "James Bond" tactics.

Step Fifteen: Always use the National Calling Frequency for general conversations. The more uninteresting, the longer you should use it. Extra points are awarded if you have recently move from an adjacent frequency for no reason. Make sure when DX is "rolling" in on 52.525 that you hang out there and talk to your friends five miles down the road about the good old CB days!

Step Sixteen: Make sure that if you have a personal problem with someone, you should voice your opinion in a public forum, especially a net. Make sure you give their name, call, and any other identifying remarks. For maximum points, make sure the person in question is not on the repeater, or not available.

Step Seventeen: Make sure you say the first few words of each transmission twice, especially if it is the same thing each time. Like "roger, roger" or "fine business, fine business". I cannot stress enough about encouraging redundancy.

Step Eighteen: If you hear a conversation on a local repeater, break in and ask how each station is receiving you. Of course they will only see the signal of the repeater you are using, but it's that magic moment when you can find a fellow "LID", and get the report. Extra points are awarded if you are using a base station, and the repeater is less than twenty-five air miles from you.

Step Nineteen: Use the repeater for an hour or two at a time, preventing others from using it. Better yet, do it on a daily basis. Your quest is to make people so sick of hearing your voice every time they turn on their radio, they'll move to another frequency. This way you'll lighten the load on the repeater, leaving even more time for you to talk on it.

Step Twenty: See just how much flutter you can generate by operating at handheld power levels too far away from the repeater. Engage people in conversations when you know they wont be able to copy half of what your saying. Even when they say your uncopyable, continue to string them along by making further transmissions. See just how frustrated you can make the other amateur before he finally signs off in disgust.

Step Twenty One: Use lots of radio jargon. After all, it makes you feel important using words ordinary people don't say. Who cares if it makes you sound like you just fell off Channel 19 on the citizen's Band? Use phrases such as "Roger on that", "10-4", "I'm on the side", "Your making the trip" and "Negatory on that".

Step Twenty Two: Use excessive microphone gain. See just how loud you can make your audio. Make sure the audio gain is so high that other amateurs can hear any bugs crawling on your floor. If mobile, make sure the wind noise is loud enough that others have to strain to pick your words out from all the racket.

Step Twenty Three: Start every transmission with the word "Roger" or "QSL". Sure, you don't need to acknowledge that you received the other transmission in full. After all, you would simply ask for a repeat if you missed something. But consider it your gift to the other amateur to give him solace every few seconds that his transmissions are being received.

Step Twenty Four: When looking for a contact on a repeater, always say your "listening" or "monitoring" multiple times. I've always found that at least a half dozen times or so is good. Repeating your multiple "listening" ID's every 10 to 15 seconds is even better. Those people who didn't want to talk to you will eventually call you, hoping you'll go away after you have finally made a contact.

Step Twenty Five: Always use a repeater, even if you can work the other station easily on simplex ... especially if you can make the contact on simplex. The coverage of the repeater you use should be inversely proportional to your distance from the other station.

Step Twenty Six: When on repeaters using courtesy tones, you should always say "over". Courtesy tones are designed to let everyone know when you have unkeyed but don't let that stop you. Say "over", "back to you" or "go ahead". It serves no useful purpose but don't worry, it's still fun!

Step Twenty Seven: Use the repeater's autopatch for frivolous routine calls... especially during morning or evening commute times. While pulling into the neighborhood, call home to let them know you'll be there in two minutes.... or, call your spouse to complain about the bad day you had at work. After all, the club has "measured rate" service on their phone line so they get charged for each autopatch call. Your endeavor is to make so many patches in a year that you cost the club at least $20 in phone bills. That way you'll feel you got your money's worth for your dues!

Step Twenty Eight: Never say "My name is ....." It makes you sound human. If at all possible, use one of the following phrases: a) "The personal here is ..." b) "The handle here is..."

Step Twenty Nine: Use "73" and "88" incorrectly. Both are already considered plural, but add a "s" to the end anyway. Say "73's" or "88's". Who cares if it means "best regards" and "love and kisses." Better yet, say "seventy thirds"! (By the way, seventy thirds equals about 23.3).

Step Thirty: If the repeater is off the air for service, complain about the fact that it was off the air as soon as it's turned back on. Act as though your entire day has been ruined because the repeater wasn't available when you wanted to use it. Even thought you have never paid a penny to help out with the upkeep of it.

At the same time the price of gasoline has gone up, the minimum wage has gone up, the stock market has gone up but in just about all areas of society mutual respect and courtesy have gone down.

When I was born (1-10-33) there were approximately 130,000,000 Americans. I think we are approaching 300,000,000 now. I'm still relatively polite, I think that may be why I get so many funny looks when I speak to folks. Poor as we were, I think I liked the 30s and early 40s a whole lot better. Main thing I've noticed about the more recent citizens Is that there have never been so many with such high self esteem and so little reason for it. (G) I'm a relatively recently licensed Ham (Tech-2002, Gen'l-2005) Had no real interest in CW but realized I had to pass the test to advance beyond the no-code Tech level (Besides, I figgered actually having passed even the elementary 5 WPM CW test would eventually be a prideful thing.)

I'm a couple decades younger than you (my mother was born in '33), but I have sure seen a massive change in societal attitudes since I was young.
Used to be that people understood the concept of earning what they get out of life, now everyone seems to think they're entitled to anything they want for free. Kind of sad, really.

Yessum, I agree. I always hated to work, but I always understood that it was something I had to do.
I was a high school dropout, but after I got out of the Army I picked up two college degrees. I never really amounted to much, but did pretty well for a dropout, even taught Industrial Arts in a Dallas Junior High School for eleven years. Finished my working years as a Design Drafter (CAD) for Halliburton.

Yes, and I have a request, too. Years ago Frank Zappa had a song out that didn't hit the airwaves, but was popular nonetheless and was in his 1984 Thing-fish album. I'd like you to dedicate Frank Zappa's, "He's So Gay" to Roger.

He's so gay
He's so gay
He's very very gay
He's so gay
He's so gay
And he likes to be that way
With his keys all on the right
He's into rubber every night
He's so gay
He's so gay
He's ALMOST EVERYONE TODAY

He's okay
He's okay
He's got a role he wants to play
He's okay
He's okay
He's just a cowboy for a day

Of course, his evening's not complete Without some meat in the seat;
Let's skate away
Down Santa Monica today

Maybe he wants a little spanking
Maybe he'll eat a little chain
Maybe his lover should be thanking him
For the way he makes it sprinkle
Into drops of GOLDEN RAIN

He's so gay
He's so gay
He rules the city in a way
You could say
You could say
It's sorta different today
All the taffeta and chintz
And every Leather Boy's a PRINCE
Hey hey hey!
Please don't look the other way

You could be just like him
TOMORROW!
Maybe you'll get a chance
To borrow (Borrow)
His bouquet
And maybe later...MAYBE LATER
We'll ALL BE GAY-Y-Y-Y-Y-Y-Y-Y-Y!
DO YOU REALLY WANNA HURT ME?

On the newsgroups. most of the bad behavior seems to come from people

What is sad is that in California they deny the Boy Scouts public park access, but it is OK for gays to have public sex in the same parks without fear of being arrested.

nobody is asking for free access to HF, I am not I am asking that requireents for such acces be reasonable, with the decliene in the use and import of CW over the years the CW test is not a reasonable requirement, the same cane be said of othe rpeices of the written test signal (a UHF mode) in order to use HF spectrum is truly beyond me but it does not rsie to the pass fail nature of the CW test

My long term plan is also to pass the General exam,

Let's use proper nomenclature. There is little danger of CW going away. What is going away is Morse Code - replaced by more efficient ways of comunication. We're always asked "What would you do is the only way you could communicate was to turn your transmitter on and off?". Simple! I'd use Tap Code - you know the "CW" with only dots, no dashes - the one used by banging on pipes, the one anybody can use without tons of practice. Arrange the alphabet in a 5 x 5 matrix leaving out K (use 'c' instead). Each letter is addressed by its position in the matrix: a = 1,1; b = 1,2 .... f = 2,1 and so on. These become your "dits" or bangs or flashes or blinks as appropriate. I'm amazed at how few know this.

why? or better what makes it higher?

to do so implies that it is accepted that there is soething worng inherantly with saying or typing "shit" when "shit' is what you mean.

given that words like "shit" "fuck" have an impact beyond their equivelanets feces, and fornication, why ot use them

the only that does is foisting a morality thatI don't accept agree the word I mentioned and other are over used but that is a only a problem in that it lessens their impact not that it is worng

Your choice of language clearly identifies your value system.

The subject you passionately defend is considered immoral by 90+ % of the people in the world, and ALL the world's established religions.

A multicultural society will condone your language and lifestyle; and, YES, you must condone their 'straight' lifestyles. Any right you claim for yourself you must also respect in others with whom you disagree.

Finally, this thread is so far off subject that it deserves a quick referral to the circular file.

hey, "an_old_friend".....you seem like a good guy. don't let these low lifes fuck with you. i'll catch up on all of it when i get back home. my dispatcher is sending me down to anderson,sc then out to the west coast.

it's none of these asswipes business who you're married to or who you sleep with. they're probably pissed that your life is yours and it doesn't matter to you what they think. thats a big problem with the radio hobby, no matter if it's cb, ham or what ever. people sticking their noses into things that have nothing to do with radio. then the idiots even fight with themselves over who is a ham or cb'er. then the hams fight over who has what kind of license. dumb stupid shit. why do people forget the main purpose the main purpose is having fun with rf? why does it matter who has a license? or what class? then we all wonder why any radio hobby is looked at strangely by the general public. maybe because all these wonderful folks who worry about who is straight, bi, or gay are the strangest, lowest forms of life there is..... truth is, most are just plain fucking weird to most non-radio hobby types. i say "fuck'em...." have fun!

an_old_friend, keep these neurotics in check and i'll catch up when i get back. BTW, i monitor 146.52 in my truck most of the time,along with good 'ole ch 19. it would be my pleasure to work your station sometime.

All you guys posting to this thread do not know anything about Usenet.

All this crap is being cross posted to newsgroups where there should be no interest in this bickering, childish behavior.

Before you do any follow ups to this message, right before you hit your send button, look at what newsgroups you are posting to. Delete (do you know how to use your delete key?) all the newsgroups except rec.radio.amateur.misc. then the antenna newsgroup and the equipment newsgroup etc. will not be seeing the posts which are IRRELEVANT.
So if you like this bullshit bickering stuff go on over to rec.radio.amateur.misc and you will see there are lots and lots of them to entertain you all night long. You can call all of the posters there names to your hearts content.

rec.raio.amateur.policy because the antenna guys and the equipment

Moderators "tend" to have agendas?

Yes, but can you rightly say that "all" of them do? Of course not.

I've seen moderated groups that do quite well staying on topic w/o a lot of moderation interferaance. (I help moderate one actually) The moderation policy is farily simple, we know who's posting before you are allowed to post, then after that as long as you are not off topic you are free to post what ever you want. I have yet to see a post that I've had to reject and we've only had a few folks try to join that we had to reject. (Being obviously posted by known spammers.)

The moderation policy really determines what sort of "adgendas" of the moderators can be enforced. If the policy is "stay on topic" and "be respectful" how can that be bad?

There is also a place for enforcing some general nice things, like reducing excesive cross posting, not allowing "follow up to" headers to unrelated groups and deleteing SPAM. Beyond that you start getting into questions of opinion which I suppose "could" be seen as an adjena, but it's all a matter of what the attitude of the moderation team is.

I'd also be a lot less concerned about a "team" of moderators than I would be of just one guy. I've been on the receiving end of an iron fist moderation policy on FIDO net, and the guy who tossed me off his news group was obviously not interested in seeing or allowing any differing opinons.

So moderation is not all bad, but some is.

I don't think we can throw out the baby with the bath water, just because it can be abused.

The school yard is often lively with youngsters demonstrating their capability of spewing out newly learned potty words that they envision makes them more of a man.
However when they do mature they usually realize that kind of language really only makes them appear child like. Some never do get it.

Norm, you are truly a fucking idiot. FYI i don't play with silly hammie contests or other such non-sense. i've never sat for a "ve" exam and never will. i've held a general ticket since 1971 and sat before the fcc to be tested. actually had to draw a couple of simple circuits, not to mention 75% solid cpy.

as far as 50wpm, if thats true you're using a computer to cpy. i hold my own at approx 25 wpm.....MAYBE 30 on a good day. so what? cw doesn't prove shit. some of the new tech's run circles around me with their digital skills. you OTOH probably can't cpy your name at 5 wpm. to me, the new tech's are a breath of fresh air to a hobby that has been nothing more than a ceptic tank thanks to assholes like you.

cb radio is still fun, too. spent many nights shooting the shit on the lower side of 16 with my trusty trc-48. i still like to listen to the entertainment on 38 lsb. it's funny, norm. not as funny as reading your horse shit, but funny.

well, i'm leaving for s.c. .....got to make money dodging the DOT fellas, don't ya know. i'll see you when i get home.....you silly fucks make me laugh my ass off! thanks for all the material.

A perfect example of stuff that would be filtered as noise should this group go moderated someday. Despite the objections I've heard here, I think there is much to gain here.

Of course this whole debate is a bit out of topic for this group to start with...

I don't see how this is any more efficient (indeed, it appears to be less efficient) than CW-Morse code. My understanding is that Morse wisely used the least complicated sequences for the most commonly used letters. I think this is also true of PSK31, but I could be wrong.

Consider the letter "E": a single "dit" in Morse, but it becomes one "tap" followed by 5 "taps" in the above scheme. None too efficient, it seems to me.

well cecil you are leaving out a number of possibilities

more is less effeicent than phonics in number of occasions

one if the sending or receieving station doesn't know morse the gam is up (thus smoke signals are more effiecent than trying to send Morse code to me)

two sending a recieving requires 2 people knowledable and skilled at the mode. not something I want to bank anything important on these days

Well Old Friend,

I'm not sure I understand what you mean... You doubt that moderation could help or you think it's just too far gone?

I think that a lot of the objectionable material that is obviously off topic and the flame wars that have grown up around such junk as you indicate would be easy to moderate away without giving up any freedom to debate all sides of the issues.

You can disagree without being disagreeable... One only has to respect the other guy, no matter how much you disagree with them. For example, you may think that somebody doesn't know anything about the topic they are making statements about, but you don't need to call him stupid to debate the issues. You can just start bringing up the facts you think they missed and ask for their thoughts on them.

I think you and I have had such discussions without having to resort to a name calling flame war.. It can be done.

I don't agree that it will always be abused. In my opinion if there are approparte safe guards and more than a single moderator (like 4 or more) with a clear policy that precludes the abilty of a single person to impose his personal views on the group, the chances of abuse are limited. If you start with a policy that says, posts will be approved unless.. (then proceed to define the allowed reasons for a post to be rejected) I thnk it will be very diffuclt for the moderaton to become an iron fist control of the groups. Human nature not withstanding.

Then if you allow an appeal process for rejected posts to be reconsidered I think you will have gone a long way to avoiding the problems you seem to be worried about.

No, I think somebody could construct a method of governing the control being exercised that largely avoids the risks.

it would be easy but I siply don't believit will happen

it has become perfactly acceptable to cenage in names calling rather than anythinglike true deabte. one has merely to watch the news for that as member of several less than popular minorites I doubt that I would receive any protection from moderators and that mdoeration would merely end up serving as a sheild for my attacker since likely as well I would be be premitted to truley respond to my attackers esp Robeson would likely get through ost moderators I have seen meaning I would effectively libeld without defense, or else the moderation would be so heavy handed that nothing would get through

I am not concerned about irona fisted control I am talking about abuse

if moderation aloows through what amounts to gay bashing will allow the agreved to respond to it. Itis my belief (and where si a link to that peom tat gies something like "they cae for the Jews and..) ignoring such is akin to moral danger for those affected and indeed all society

And ham radio, it was to send and receive phone and CW. Now we're required to believe it acceptable to send and receive Blowjobs.

Cussing is known to be a right brain activity. I suspect
CW is a left brain activity. If I am angry enough to cuss,
I am too angry to send Morse Code.

I didn't answer because he: 1. chose to change the subject and
2. refused to answer my question. So he didn't deserve an answer.

I wouldn't appreciate my EE degree any more if it had been harder to obtain. I just might not have obtained it. But that is an irrelevant diversion thus no answer from me.

If the goal is "better" amateur radio operators, let's make obtaining a license so difficult that only two people can obtain it.

Well,

I suppose you are right that there is a risk in going fully moderated, but at this point I don't see that this news group would have much to loose.

Any reasonable debate is currently lost in the noise of the flamers as evidenced in this thread.

Personally I don't think ones race, religion, sex, orientation etc has any bearing on their ability to add to the debate of amateur radio policy and I don't see how any of your responses to me would come close to being the type of thing that should be moderated out of the group.

About facts being ignored you are right in part. Many folks only want to stand on the soap box and don't want to be confused by the facts. Some actually are interested in the facts and read such groups to find them. I just don't think anybody is served when we get 15 posts in a 20 post thread that are obviously just flaming with nothing valueable to add or some fine point to discuss. We simply are not going to attract new readers like this.

I'm a bit tired of all the gutter talk that the bulk of this group seems to be about. I personally don't care (from a rec.radio.amateur.policy perspective anyway) what somebodies sexual orientation is (real or imagined). I would generally ignore the content anyway when such inflammatory language is used, the poster must just not have anything worth while to say.

Don't be fooled though, some of us actually do look for those who present logical arguments or new facts for our consideration. It may not work with the general rabble flame throwers, but there are some folks here who are willing to step back and consider new thinking. Don't give up trying.

Ah yes! The "Great Lick-a-Crotchie Net" as Sid the Lid K5BLB used to call it! They are still on Sat nites at 10 PM EST but they could be anyplace from 3.930 to 3.990 as they lost rights to 3.950 some time ago. Tune around and you'll hear Vic's w-i-d-e signal and dirty amp buckshoting 12kc's either side. Apart from that it's the same old shi+ they've bee talkin about for years although many of the old time gasbags from Year's past are now either dead or dottering around the Rest Home enjoying their senility. S_S_D_D . . . . . .

(you can still catch BLB and crew on 3.947.5 Sat nights

The Lib Net pre-dates Wogie and Lloyd and all the rest of them.
The Lib Net is the ORIGINAL Kook Net of 75 Meters.
They've been around since the late 70's with the latest goofy crap for almost every Sat night running. They even pre-date the great 20 Meter and 75 Meter Net wars. Quite a unique run for Ham Radio, but HR has always attracted the screwballs living amongst us. Enjoy!

sexaul you reveal that it is you with oretintation issues

when you press the flase conclsuion that I must be homo or hetero you prove you have a sexul problem

I am not pro homosexaul truth be told I think ture homosexals are as screwed up sxauly as prue hetero's, this is of properly a topic for a different NG, but you don't care about that the fact you refuse to accept what agenda I am in fact promoting is the proof that you have sexaul problems

Crossbreed them with radical militant evangelicals coupled with

I think that Mark and Todd have a great deal OF mental stability than some of the posters in here. They just don't put up with certain people's attacks and vacuous bullshit. Especially some fake ghetto moron posting from an Altopia account. I would be more concerned about the ghetto scum or Weissman being around anyones kids than two white guys.

That's interesting that WGM was in there because I listened to four hours of the show last night and W8GNQ was the person talking about the DaVinci Code and the consecration. One reason I say that is because GNQ is a Catholic while N8WGM isn't and has said so many times. Actually it was a pretty good net considering that the people on there talked about matters that have may have some pretty harsh consequences on the American way of life. However, if you choose to stick your head in the sand, that's certainly not uncommon either.

No, THEY are the delusional individuals who need mental counseling. I could hook them up with a good shrink if they would only come out and say who they are. I know a couple of psychologists personally and I am sure they could get together with them. I suspect that Randie, Not Lloyd, and other characters are nothing more than Weissman. Weissman likes to hide under a million different names on spam the newsgroup. It fits the character and persona that Weissman has created for himself over the years. He's used various screen names whether it be whinyslit, crow, his callsigns, Not Lloyd II, and others. Just do a google search of his postings back from say 2000 to 2003 and check them out. Noticeably, they come from the same place generally and eventually he gets outed.

I think Pat Robertson, Jerry Falwell and their ilk fill the bill. Also Former Attorney General John Ashcroft (but what a GREAT singer!)

Darn it your right! It was GNQ. I get these two mixed up

Yeah, I caught bits and pieces of the Net last night. Nothing like it was about 10 years ago, though. I mean, some of the verbal fights between the Net members and the jammers like K5BLB, K5ZU, WA9KJI, W9ART, etc, etc, were hilarious. Some of the more entertaining Net members/jammers either left or died off. I used to really enjoy

WB4AIO's coments.He was one of the more intelligent guys on the air.

I sometimes hear K5 Big Load'a Blubber on the air with his same old tired jokes. I wonder what happened to Krazy Jewish Injun?

Oh well, the gold ol' days are gone.

Liberty Net is somewhat amusing but that kook Karl up in VE7 land was on all day on 14.275
ranting like a banshee on Sunday the 14th.
Then of course in came Michigan Mike,
Vietnam Dan the Fighting Man, Zipper
Queer from VT, and a dozen or so Un-ID'ed
QRM'ers who turned 14.275 into a COMPLETE NUTHOUSE in very short order, complete with someone playing German Marching Music at one point.

It was like the old '313 of years past and MUCH MORE refreshing than listening to K1MAN spreading mayonaise into the asscrack of 20 Meters and taking a big bite outta the same... :)

Bottom line, dickhead: The Internet is made up of cooperative, mostly private corporations who agree by contract to carry each other's packets. You have no rights on the Internet other than those which the corporations choose to grant. It's called "private enterprise," dickhead, and it's the norm these days. Deal with it.

As to the lolicon cartoons themselves, most people - the dysfunctional Japanese included - find them to be repulsive on several levels. Such sites cause us to question the psychological state of the people who view or who distribute that crap, because we have learned the hard way that those people are bound to include a larger than normal number of sickos who are a danger to our children. The sickos uniformly hide behind legalisms while they continue to abuse and murder our children.

We're fed up with that and believe in an active, preemptive defense against the sickos, including trashing their favorite distribution channels and putting their names into national registries that anyone can access.

So you're on our list, Mr. Sicko, and we're going to keep after you. You and your creepy friends are not going to be allowed to hide behind legalisms while you fantasize about raping babies.

Until you get that shit off the net, we'll hound you wherever you go.

And that's a solemn promise.

"Take the plunge"

*Note: You'll need condoms and a plunger (or something of a similar size and shape) to try this.
First, I take the condom and slip it over the handle on the plunger. If the condom is not very well lubed, then I pour lotion over the tip of it. I stick the plunger to the floor so it doesn't slide anywhere while I'm doin' my business.
I then take my pants off so they won't get in the way and are not stained by the lotion or cum.
With my dick in my hand, slowly stroking, little by little I slide the plunger up my anus. Pushing it as far as I can, I start to jack off. You can try it either with or without lube, it really doesn't matter.
Right before climax (it shouldn't take you very long),
I stop and begin to massage my testicles.
After about 10 seconds, I start back up again.
Repeat this until you can't hold the cum any longer.
Once you reach the point of blowing your load and you can't stop it, just let loose. You might want to be aiming at a toilet bowl or something so you won't spend the following hour cleaning up the far wall.

....from "Bad cop, no donut" a podcast of police brutality:

April 27, 2006:
"A sherrif's deputy in Dolphin County, Pennsylvania was charged last week with sending his neighbor pictures of his penis and appearing naked in her backyard. The Patriot News says that Deputy Anthony Fritz was suspended on March 23rd while an investigation was conducted. He is now charged with stalking, open lewdness, and 2 counts of criminal harrassment. Fritz, who is married, started sending emails that were sexual in nature to a woman who lived nearby in February. The woman chose not to respond and the emails continued to become more and more explicit. Fritz is accused of emailing the woman a photograph of himself holding his penis. The picture was taken with the deputy's cell phone which was also used to send the image on March 4th and 5th. He is accused of sending the woman messages that he was sitting at a picnic table in her backyard naked. On one of those occasions, the woman's brother confronted Fritz in the backyard. He remains suspended without pay."

Well, Buster, it's really a toss up. Ms. Prude got so hot and bothered after finally getting to see a real live dick for the first time in her life she ran right home to put his dick picture on the Internet. Then she got in the tub and had multiple orgasms under the water faucet to calm herself.
As
for the alleged pervert, let's face facts. Anyone who chooses to sit naked while reading an "Archie" comic book kaint be all that bad.

Not Roger but Dicksucking Davies wrote:
> I love

You love whining "Leave me alone" in your lisping girly voice when Oris came to your door, fatty.

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I decided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act
when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups.
He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone!

I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me
alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave,
please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and
the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and
a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars

everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it
for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris Grimm

You mean other than claiming you're not a pervert when you admit to having same-sex relations?

Or lying about your service in the Armed Forces?

Then we have you allegations of being threatened.

Follow that up with your allegations of being stalked.

We can then add in your past mental health history which you denied you had, then admitted to being treated after being outted even once more.

There's more, but hey. you keep these alive well enough...

No, Lardass, you couldn't find a car big enough to hide your fat queer ass. You'd rather hide behinde your HUD apartment door and whine "leave me alone" like you did when Oris stopped by.

This was e-mailed to me this morning by Oris Grimm an old friend.

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Frank Zappa - Dancing Fool
(written by: Frank Zappa)

I don't know much about dancin',
That's why I got this song,
One of my legs is shorter than the other,
And both of my feet are too long.
'Course now I'll ride along with them,
I got no natural rythem,
But I go dancing every night,
Hoping one day I might get it right!

I'm a dancing fool (Dancing fool)X3

I hear that beat,
I jump outta my seat,
But I can't compete,
'Cause I'm a.....

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The disco folks all dressed up,
Like life is fit to kill,
I walk on in and I see 'em there,
Gonna give them all a thrill.
When they see me comin',
They all steps aside,
They has a fit while I come in,
My social suicide.

I'm a dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on
And I'm so... (woooaah)

The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

Yowzer, yowzer, yowzer,
I got it all together now,
With my very own disco clothes... Hey!
My shirt's half open,
To show you my chain,
And the spoon for up my nose.
I am really something,
That's what you'd probably say,
So smoke your little smoke,
And drink your little drink,
While I dance the night away.
I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X4

He's a dancing fool

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

I may be totally wrong but I'm a fool...yeah

Hey darling, can I buy you a couple of drinks, hmm?
Lookin' for Mr. Goodbar, 'cause here he is.
Wait a minute, I've got it,
You're an Italian.
Ha? You're Jewish?
Oh. love your nails.
You must be a Libra.
To your place or mine?

(laughs)
yes.

Yes...Markie is a dancing fool DANCE MARKIE DANCE!

Please email mail this to your Division Directors and Section managers.
With a loud voice, maybe we can get the ARRL to work for us instead of against us:

No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Make the no-code Tech license one year non-renewable.

Um, haven't you been following what is going on in the rest of the

You might want to follow the thread a bit closer, loser. I was referring to the original poster, Terry who is in the UK. David said I shouldn't call him a Limey.

You sure are living up to the name Lloyd. I know you aren't Lloyd Davies, probably his namesake though.

I don't give two shits about where he posts from, Lloyd. You seem to be able to sniff out faggots. Birds of a feather?

This personifies why the Amateur Radio Service has lost an entire generation of new members as well as why the average Ham is aged 62.5 years old.

It also goes far in explaining why fewer Emergency Operations Centers managers look upon Amateur Radio as a viable means of support during an emergency.

This thinking truly puts the "amateur" back into the Amateur Radio Service.

This is a perfect example of viewing the future through your rear-view mirror.

All in favor of that should respond to the relay league with their vote for the continuance of CW as a "filter" ; in spite of the decisions already made during the WRC03.

It has already "filtered" out the expertise of those receiving the most up to date training in digital communications.

Show your level of understanding of the current situation; vote for the continuance of CW as a requirement for the death of the Amateur Radio Service.

You better do it quickly; the ARRL has already announced new testing material being released for exams administered after July 1st, 2006.

Wink, Wink - Nudge, Nudge

Nice troll. (...worthy of the late Polly from 14.313)

It would never REALLY happen you know.

If hams were ever forced to re-test when their license was up for renewal, no doubt WHATSOEVER in my mind that 75% would drop out from Ham radio.

Even the guys on 10 Meter FM working Repeaters and 28.600 simplex what scanner listeners and SWL's monitors tune into would dry up overnight.

Apart from that ARRL only represents 20% of all USA at best. Most people know that they are nothing more than a publishing house which landed a 501C-3 Tax free status via claiming to be a technical resource and training NGO org. What a load of sheer bullshi++ery.

Arrl could go belly up tomorrow and it wouldn't be worth a cup of coffee with Habib Patel at the local Dunkin Donuts.

Actually there are NO automatic renewals now. You must apply for the renewal. There's really no need to retest.

Why? It's been 74% as far back as I can remember.

The original code test back in the earliest days of licensing was only 5wpm.
It would be nice to have the 13wpm as a requirement since that's the speed at which most people can't count the dits and dahs but those who use it will get past that anyway. The 20wpm was only icing on the cake so don't see a real need for it. Those who get to the 13wpm will get to the 20wpm if they use it much. Although I advocate keeping code testing, we need not reinstate the 20wpm in my opinion.

Pointless change. Many people don't gain enough experience or get together enough of a station in a year to know if they want to continue.

Frank Zappa - Dancing Fool
(written by: Frank Zappa)

I don't know much about dancin',
That's why I got this song,
One of my legs is shorter than the other,
And both of my feet are too long.
'Course now I'll ride along with them,
I got no natural rythem,
But I go dancing every night,
Hoping one day I might get it right!

I'm a dancing fool (Dancing fool)X3

I hear that beat,
I jump outta my seat,
But I can't compete,
'Cause I'm a.....

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The disco folks all dressed up,
Like life is fit to kill,
I walk on in and I see 'em there,
Gonna give them all a thrill.
When they see me comin',
They all steps aside,
They has a fit while I come in,
My social suicide.

I'm a dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on
And I'm so... (woooaah)

The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

Yowzer, yowzer, yowzer,
I got it all together now,
With my very own disco clothes... Hey!
My shirt's half open,
To show you my chain,
And the spoon for up my nose.
I am really something,
That's what you'd probably say,
So smoke your little smoke,
And drink your little drink,
While I dance the night away.
I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X4

He's a dancing fool

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

I may be totally wrong but I'm a fool...yeah

Hey darling, can I buy you a couple of drinks, hmm?
Lookin' for Mr. Goodbar, 'cause here he is.
Wait a minute, I've got it,
You're an Italian.
Ha? You're Jewish?
Oh. love your nails.
You must be a Libra.
To your place or mine?

883. A "Final Solution" To The Illegal Alien Problem

Frank applauds the Minutemen in their march on Washington, arguing that they are not so much against illegal invaders, but are against crime.

Frank then proposes his own "final solution" to the illegal alien problem - chip implantation for anyone who comes into America on a visa. The chip will send out a signal out to immigration authorities once the person's visa expires, allowing for easy tracking and expelling of the violator from America. If this chip were removed from the visa holder before its expiration, another signal would be sent to authorities noting abuse of the system.

Frank also calls for the deportation of Americans who want to play Political Hackey Sack with Iran. If you're that stupid, if you're that naiive to feel sorry for Iran and portray that country as a victim, you have no right to call yourself an American. Frank bases this on the closing words of Iranian President's letter to Bush, where he writes, "Peace be upon those who follow the true path".

Also, the Roman origins of Patrick Kennedy's excuse for speeding... how Clinton originated Project Eccellon... prediction for Bush's speech on Monday... your phone calls and more at 718-761-9996.

Neither does a sick Japanese kiddy porn bbs, but yet you talk about it here all the time, NewsGay, and then you put a bbs up on your home machine. After that, your ISP gets on your ass to clean it up and so you do because you are a class A1 coward.

We can all see that you are still with CTI from your IP address, NewsGay, so that makes you a pussy who is all talk and no action.

A challenge to all fags and other self-righteous people: WE DARE YOU TO READ THESE SAD LETTERS THAT HONEST FAGS SENT TO WBC.
Unlike the hypocrites of Exodus International and other phony so-called "ex-gays," here's the testimony of honest fags. Unlike money-grubbing heretics like Jerry Falwell and the folks at Focus on the Family who think if they lie often enough about Jesus Christ and can get enough money from enough simpletons, then they can deceive homosexuals into believing they've repented, here are the confessions of sincere fags. As the publican in Luke 18:13 & 14, so is this fag: "And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner. I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." His testimony reads as follows:

Testimony 1
"Hi Rev. Phelps, or whoever reads these:

I trapped myself into faggotry when I was 19 years old. While I have to take responsibility for this myself, I can see how our modern American values made it so easy to turn myself into a fag. I can't be the only one who got trapped this way.

In an example of kindness that can kill, society seems to no longer view the sin of sodomy as a sin. Instead, the view now common is that the temptation to commit buggery is an intrinsic immutable personal characteristic, as much as having brown eyes or red hair. Therefore it can't be wrong, so the theory goes.

When I first felt these temptations, I learned not that I was a sinner but that I had 'awakened' to my own sexual identity. I should 'rejoice in this characteristic that makes me the individual I am.' This clever lie not only gave me permission to commit these sins but also indeed put considerable pressure on me to make these acts the mantle of my existence and adopt a life that revolved around the act of buggery. Because after all, to repent and turn from this sin would be 'denying the reality of my identity' and 'only living a lie.'

With the help of an 'understanding' society, I adopted this view. Occasionally I sought help (in the wrong places) for the nagging notion that this was all a horrible, horrible mistake. The apostate clergy of modern psychology told me that my aversion to my 'sexual identity' was wrong, I should let go of my inhibitions and go enjoy the revolving door sex culture of anonymous gay sex.

I reached a depth of despair at my first (and last) 'gay pride' parade. I saw the most revolting attributes of homosexuality flaunted as if they were the hallmark achievements of mankind. Vileness, promiscuity, perversity, and inverted morality (not to mention logic) were all hailed in an orgy of celebration. It was like a bad science fiction horror movie of Hades come to Earth.

As the years passed, it was increasingly more difficult to suppress the growing sense of revulsion I had to those wretched beings with whom I had cast my lot. I left the city every year on the day of the 'gay pride' orgy. I tried to distance myself from the amoral antilogical licentious human garbage that collectively calls itself the 'gay community.'

Currently I still feel the call of this sin, though I no longer act on it. The final chapter of my odyssey of escape from the clever lies of an immutable fag nature is perhaps not yet written. But I pray to God for redemption. I'm not yet sure of the state of my salvation, but if nothing else, I have turned my back on fag sin and all the evil that comes with it.

I used to think you people were evil and crazy and persecuted the righteous. But I am beginning to understand that I have had it exactly backwards."

Testimony 2
"If it's ok with you, I would like you guys to post my story on your site like you did with that other guy. Here is my story below, feel free to correct any spelling. I am not afraid to have my name in there, so feel free to print it.
My name is F* G. I am now 55 and I have AIDS, my reward for a life of faggotry and promiscuity. In my lifetime I have had nearly every venereal disease you could imagine, but none of those could stop me from my life of sin.

I got involved with sodomy at a very young age. My neighbor was an upstanding person in the community. Everyone loved him and his wife. At church he was almost a celebrity. But what I found out that his wife had not, is that he was a faggot, leading a hidden lifestyle. One weekend, my parents thought it would be a good idea for me to go camping with my neighbor while they were out of town. It was a horrible mistake for all of us.

Alone with this pervert in the woods, there was nobody to stop him from exposing me to sodomy and all manners of perversion. Years later, those events damaged my psychological development in high school. I could never maintain a healthy relationship with females. But things got worse in college.

When I was a senior in college, I met a professor that was a faggot. He began telling me that what I was feeling was "normal", and that those who opposed this sort of behavior were neandethals and backward. Soon we were having a relationship. It was then that I had considered myself gay.

What I want people to know at this point is that the gay lifestyle is not some kind of mirror image of the heterosexual lifestyle. It involves multiple partners, anonymous sex, and many perversions. It seemed that I needed to experience more and more perverted activities to be satisfied. Among the ones I could mention here are pedophilia and beastiality.

So I continued in my life of faggotry, never truly happy. I claimed I was proud of it; I marched in parades and chanted the slogans. But inside I knew there was something wrong. From the first time I called myself gay, I had always turned to drugs to take away the pain of my sin. If I ran out of money for drugs, I thought nothing wrong about going to the nearest rest stop or public restroom, and offering my services to strangers. Nothing the gay movement could tell me could make me happy the way the drugs did. They said that the lifestyle was becoming more accepted, that we were going to be accepted by the country as normal. But I knew I was not normal, and I suspected many others know this too.

Still I was involved in the lifesyle until March 24, 1999. I had in and out of doctors' offices for years, diagnosed and treated for ghonorrea, scabies, and lice. I thought I had hit the bottom when diagnosed with herpes in 1995. But on that day in 1999, I learned that I had tested positive for HIV. The worse thing is that with the lifestyle I was leading, I could not tell you who gave me that virus.

The reason why I am writing this, and using my real name, is because I want everyone to know the truth about his lifestyle. I no longer care about what happens to me. I will be dead soon, and my family disowned me long ago. I am ashamed of what I did to them and god. When I was lying in the hospital bed about a month ago, I learned that what I had done for years was a sin.

Now I felt better knowing that I was right to doubt myself back then. I have repented to the Lord and know that while my sins are now washed clean, my duty in my final months on Earth is to warn the world, especially young males, about the danger of homosexuality.

There is NOTHING normal about it. The media tries to portray faggots as being entertaining, funny, and just like everyone else. But that could not be further from the truth. I know because I have been there. Not a day goes by that I don't regret my sins of the past. If just one afflicted person reads this and changes there ways before having to suffer the pain that I have, then I will consider my holy mission accomplised.

F* G**

In case there is ANYBODY out there not realizing this yet:

Here's how it works:

A post will go as follows:

"The ARRL is a Nazi (or insert Liberal or Gay, or whatever) and all Techs (or Extras or...)should be shot. AND I SUPPORT IT!!!"

Now the poster sits back and thoroughly enjoys watching the newsgroup fill with verbal dung, back and forth.

If this is what you want, by all means respond to the poster.

If, on the other hand, you prefer ham newsgroups to be primarily there to discuss amateur radio matters in a reasonable and informative forum, then

DON'T RESPOND!

Eventually, the asswipes will find some other lucrative market for their "fun".

birth had practiced abortion and that Roger hand landed with a splash

You obviously never heard WB4AIO's great sounding audio. As you well know, many hams, and every broadcast station uses audio EQ and other processing techniques to improve voice quality. So, like, what's your beef?

Hey Dave! How ya been...?!?!

That seems to be Morkie's game plan. He crows like a rooster when I am away for a few days due to work, then claims some sort of vaporous
"victory" that he destroyed the NG in order to save it.

Can you figure it out? Or maybe it's just more of his disease

You've already stated on numerous occassions that YOU blatantly

Your statement is factually incorrect regarding equalization, though the factors you mentioned certainly do affect sound quality and I do not disparage them.

All AM stations use _at least_ the required NRSC equalization, and virtually all broadcast stations, AM, FM, or TV, use multiband audio processing, which is in itself a kind of adaptive, dynamic equalization.

I just applied those techniques, suitably refined for a narrower bandwidth, to my amateur radio station, after modifying my gear to remove the somewhat ham-handed attempts of the manufacturers to shape the audio.

With all good wishes,

There's an NRSC ''Mask'' which is used to keep the sidebands within limits but no requirement to use any preemphasis, unlike the FM standards.

1272. MORK MORON (KB9RQZ) ADMITS HIS "COLLEGE DEGREES" CLAIMS ARE BOGUS

So your claims to having a college education are bogus.

> your delsuions do not define the ruth

What's a "delsuions"...?!?!

Who's Ruth?

Nope.

Just trying to get you to validate ONE of your claims as factual.

You claimed to be in the Army. That was proven false.

You claimed to be a Commissioned Officer in the Armed Forces.
That was proven false.

You claim to be married. There's no marriage record and no females residing at your home with your family name.

You've claimed to have an IQ of 248 and expertise in computers, but almost 10 years later you still can't get a spellchecker to work.

Everything about you except your name, your FCC license, and the fact that nearly everthing else you've claimed to be tru about you has been proven false except your admitted dishonesty and sexual perversion.

And NOW we have you making claims of not, one, not two, but THREE college degrees, not a ONE of which you can verify!

Nope. Not a one.

Prove me wrong and list the degrees, the institutions that granted them and when they were granted.

> > But I DO believe you got a Short Yellow Bus Pass to the local

Why do you ask me to speak English in German when you can't speak either with any degree of competency?

Nope.

You verified what I claimed. That you have NO degrees granted by ANY college in the Untied States...Or anywhere ELSE for that matter.

You blew yet another chance to prove me wrong, Mork, yet YOU proved me right.

You continue to be your own worst enemy.

Yes. It only makes your lying even more ludicrous.

Because if you don't and you're telling the truth about your alleged "female" significant other being pregnant, at some point in the future your qualifications to be a competent parent will be called into question.

You already have a documented mental health history. This just adds fuel to the fire.

I haven't "stole" anything, Mork.

And WTF is a "creallease", anyway...?!?!

I "know" nothing of the sort.

I DO know that you continue to make claims that are as assinine as the others you've made, and none of them are true either.

What you're agreeing to, then, Mork, is that by abusing the memory of my deceased daughter, that you waive any right or claim to redress when the consequences are revisted upon you by whatever means I choose...And you accept the consequences.

What perverse, whimsical slip in the DNA chain resulted in you, Wiseman? Did you ever contemplate what could have happened if it slipped in the other direction? You might have been a genius--productive and one who contributed positively to society. Maybe it wouldn't have been altered at all. You could be mentally healthy and able to lead a normal life.

How it must pain you to be thought of as a social pariah!

I believe that you are lying yet again, Mork, and your actions validate that claim.

Anyone else who alleges to be as smart and as "competent" would be quick to present those credentials as validation of thier claims.

There's nothing about making those degrees public that would in any way, shape or form hazard you, therefore NOT publishing them is stupid.

Guess we've got more proof that you're drawing that welfare check, Morkie...

All you've done today is play in RRAP, getting caught lying, molesting dead children and perpetuating even more lies about your alleged education.

What's old Gavi gonna think about all this?

What will her dad think about it?

Nope.

I told you that it was a crime. You stopped and admitted you were lying.

If you'd continued you were going to be visited by the local FBI field agent. It was already a matter of fact. That you admitted to your lie prevented you from a very embarrassing knock on the door by men with badges and guns who didn't see the humor of your lies.

I, Roger Leo Wiseman, AB8MQ, being of unsound mind have an offer to make to others who are like me.

I live at 610 Glen Haven Avenue in Glendale, West Virginia.

I have a two bedroom house that is situated in a quiet and quaint part of West Virginia. My house has 800 square feet of floor space, has one bathroom with hot and cold running water and a toilet that works most of the time.

I am looking for a like-minded roommate who can use the second bedroom,
which measures eight by ten feet.

The kitchen has a gas stove and a microwave, both of which worked at the time of this writing.

If you are interested in sharing my humble home and can afford $400 per month rent, let me know. I require only that you pay cash up front at the first of each month.

I will not ask for, nor will I look into your criminal background since I have one of my own.

Also, don't worry about the local Police. They all know me so if you see a squad car parked down the block during the day, ignore them. The Chief often stops by just to see how I am doing.

In a public restroom
A fresh one slithering out of my rump

Floating in the bowl Makes me feel so good Awakens my soul

Never do I flush
A present for the next patron
Knowing what awaits, gives me quite a rush
For I am a fair matron

You molest the memory of my deceased daughter with each and every

I can make it happen, Mork. You've certainly been given enough levels.

Maybe that's the problem...I (and others) keep giving you breaks and you simply "read" that as weakness.

I think you meant "I'd love getting a field agent to yead your posts just once".

In that case, you'd simply wind up lookingeven MORE moronic since there's not even a HINT of violation of any law there.

You, on the otherhand, have some issues to account for.

Except there are medications available for hemmeroids. You LIKE enemas, which is why you posted it in the first place. Also putting something in

I am far more educated than you will ever be. I have what is called freestanding intellegence. An IQ test showed me that I am just a few points shy of genius even with a lack of formal education.
Of course you are a general in the Salvation Army.

No lying. You failed to do what was asked of you to claidate your claims. You didn't do it, ergo YOU have proven you are not what you claimed...Not that anyone thought different!~

No...I am using facts.

YOU claimed you are a college graduate.

Your substandard, less-than-grade school level use of English grammar is a giveaway to start with, but then your inability to even list the names of your alleged schools proves it.

YOU prove it for me...Again and again and again and again and....

Sure there is.

By using my daughter in that manner you are agreeing to the above.
That's all there is to it. If you invoke her name or memory one more time, you are accepting those consequences.

> you lied again

Nope.

YOU are accepting the terms. She's my daugher, so if YOU are going to use heer in said manner, >>>I<<< get to set the terms under which you do.

That's all ther is to it.

Any post you make invoking her memory or using her name after this post is your prima facie acecptance of those terms and any consequences you may suffer will be of your own doing.

If your IQ was of the stature of a genius, you would at least be able to spell "intelligence" and in your case you misspelled it "intellegence" Perhaps it was a slip and an honest mistake but I would suspect you would proofread your post especially when bragging.

I guess when a guy lives with his mommy then he could have a pretty decent car. After all it wasn't as if he would have been paying any

Lardass Davies whined
<IKYABWAI>

Poor Lardass, according to his neighbors his chest looks like a festering zit patch and cratered like the moon.

BILLY, DON'T BE A ZERO

Vocal: Bo Donaldson & The Heywoods

[Words and Music by Mitch Murray and Peter Robin Callander]

The gay pride band came down along Main Street
The Village People fell in behind
I looked across and there I saw Billy Smith
Waiting to go and join the line
And with her head upon his shoulder
Mary, his old and hideous she-male mommy
>From where I stood, I saw she was cryin'
And through her tears I heard her say

"Billy, don't be a zero, don't be a fool all your life"
"Billy, don't be a zero, you can go back to school at night"
And as he started to go she said "Billy, keep your your head back as you blo-o-ow"
"Billy, don't be a zero, don't forget we can give 'em a two for one you know"

The whining faggots were trapped in a alley
The gay orgy raging all around Dick Sergeant cried "We've got to hang on, boys"
"We got to hold this piece a'ground"
"I need a volunteer to ride me"
"And bring us back some extra men"
And Billy Smith's hand was up in a moment
Forgettin' all the words she said

Everybody said
"Billy, don't be a zero, don't be a fool all your life"
"Billy, don't be a hero, you can go back to school at night"
And as he started to go she said "Billy, keep your head back as you blo-o-ow"
"Billy, don't be a hero, don't forget we can give 'em a two for one you know"

I heard his she-male mommy got a letter
That told how Billy swallowed that day
The letter said that he was a zero
She should be proud he swallowed that way
I heard she threw that letter away

[military drums and fifes to end]

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I decided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act
when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups.
He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing
the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave

me
alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave,
please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty
floors and
the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me
again and
a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a

cars
everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and
could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it
for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really
is.

Common in machine or human non-radio use?

Perhaps "efficient" is the wrong word.

In my experience, it is quite difficult to send distinguishable Morse dots and dashes without a key (YMMV). Doing so by keying a mic or touching wires together thus becomes very slow - slower even than tap code. Also, it takes considerable effort to learn Morse and even more practice to copy all the less than perfect fists out there. Thus the number of operators and potential listeners who can copy such a 'bad fist' are few now and are rapidly vanishing now that Morse is strictly a hobby mode. OTOH, everybody who read my post now knows tap code - which is common in prisons, mines and other places because anybody can copy it with little or no practice.

I'm not suggesting that anybody eschew Morse if they enjoy it - just that they stick tap code into the back of their minds for emergencies.

What's the difference between gas prices and Llard Davies' mommy?

You posess a dalek doll up your fat ass, Lardass. You don't have a job now that you were fired from Papa John's (you couldn't even hold on to a loser pizza BOY job), you get drunk all the time, and you certainly don't have a girlfriend, save those dalek dolls. You certainly don't have any education either, Davies, and your middle name is Austin. What a pansy-ass name. You have to live in a HUD apartment with the rent way past due and you can't evn pay your own bills with yout mommy's help.

Poor Lardass, still whining like the cunt you always will be. You should be out looking for a job, loser, instead of sitting on your fat ass whining on the internet, fired pizza BOY. Some people called the Athens, Papa John's and found out you were indeed fired, Davies.

It took a phone call, plus several email messages, but we finally got CTITECH to remove N9OGL's internet access. His cartoon kiddy porn is now history.

We are currently after three other US sites which contain the same kind of cartoon kiddy porn, and one of them (a California site) has now attempted to go underground. In other words, they are on the run like the sicko cowards they are, but they won't be able to hide.

I won't give the URL of any of those sites, because I don't want them to receive any free advertising. My friends and I will continue to fight the good fight against cartoon kiddy porn and other net abuses. If you want to lend a hand, join us in the chat room at

and spaces on wired telegraph systems, similar to the tap method you suggest. I see the advantage that by tapping slowly, anyone who knows the scheme can copy. This is also true of Morse, of course.

1432. ARS License Numbers

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy
Date: 2006-05-19 02:30:14 UTC
From: N2EY@AOL.COM
Message-ID: <1148005814.174874.234520@38g2000cwa.googlegroups.com>
Source record: 145058

These are the numbers of current, unexpired
amateur radio licenses held by individuals
on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of May 15, 2006:

Novice - 25,182 (3.8%) [decrease of 24,147]
Technician - 280,160 (42.6%) [increase of 74,766]
Technician Plus - 39,130 (6.0%) [decrease of 89,730]
General - 133,240 (20.2%) [increase of 20,563]
Advanced - 72,315 (11.0%) [decrease of 27,467]
Extra - 108,005 (16.4%) [increase of 29,255]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 319,290 (48.6%) [decrease of 14,964]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 313,560 (47.6%) [increase of 22,351]

Total all classes - 658,032 (decrease of 16,760)

Note that these totals do not include licenses
that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES
or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses
are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

Yup, I hear that often, which is why I've had modest success with Jerry Ziliak tapes. He sends at a character speed of 21 WPM, so each letter almost becomes a single sound. Although that hasn't helped me much, thanks for the thought.

Oh, yeah!!!! I am into packet and APRS, into building antennas for myself & for the RACES stations and into teaching. Here in the West, we have something called the Western Intertie Network System or "Win System" http://www.winsystem.org/ which is loads of fun. It also has IRLP, so I've chatted with guys all over the world with it.

I did HF PSK31 under the club license during FD a few years ago. Great fun.

I've became an ET in 1962 (USN) and liked it well enough to stick around for 21 years. I became an engineer in 1989 (thank you, GI Bill), so I know my way around the 'trons. I've only been a ham since 1992.

Subject header says it all.

The retard from Athens has the gall to write to the 14.313 web page
that W4CND
Oris had better watch his step at the Dalton, Ga. hamfest, because if
the writer (Lloyd Davies) saw him, Oris was in big trouble.

Trouble was that Lloyd (as in Chickenshit) was a no show.

Plus check out his great feedback.

Hey Steveo, you going camping with retarded markie?
BWAHHAHAHAHAHAHAHHA!!!

So buy the overpriced POS
You are the queen of homo posts.

I predicted and warned you all this would happen, but none of you wouldn't listen.

Good Hams upset over all the Lids and CB'er like behavior on the bands as a result of dumbing down license requirements are leaving the hobby. I can't say I blame them and I hate to see them go.

On the bright side, there's a lot more ham gear on eBay you can bid on.

there is no city of Illiopolis

Illiospolis is a town

as you would know if you truly had any survailence up here when you were claiming I was drunk back in feb

if you had any contact with the area youd know he broke his legs that it is was investaged as possible elder abuse given that a lot elder ended up with broken legs this winter (we had weird wether for the area) and a lck of evidence nothing came of it

you are a fool robeson

just opoosing you is not proof that someone is on welfare

but then you sire a defective duaghter who might be your only ture

And what do these numbers prove? Not a bleeping thing.

I don't think any correlation exists between them and current behavior on HF, which I assume, possibly incorrectly, that you are refering to.

The biggest idiots on 20m, for instance, are on 14275, both sides are guilty, and I am quite sure that they all got their tickets with CW required. And the problem stations on 75 are quite the same. Which also proves nothing either way.

The cleanest, most public oriented operators are on 2m and 70cm, and many, or maybe most, of them did not have to pass any CW exam. They participate in Skywarn, emergency drills, and tons of other things. By and large they are good citizens. The bad actors I have seen come from all parts of the amateur community, with probably the worst from the longest licensed, who seem to feel they have some sort of rights from being around a long time. My personal sample could be wrong, but I don't think so; I've been around a while, too.

The older generation always predicts that the current one is going to cause the end of the world. Or whatever imagined disaster they are concerned about. And they are always wrong.

He likes talking smack about folk's and their wives while hiding in the land of anonymity. It's safe there . How healthy would he be if you folks knew where he lived? I don't think the coward would last a week in the real world. What happened to his daughter?

he has survived the expoosure becuase most folks don't care enough

his daughter was born with some massive defect that killed her preschool.

He claims it was the result of cropdusting maybe it was but oh nobody beter reven repeat what he out out on the web about her or he will make them pay

and yet he claims it it fair game to claim that my wife is in fact male

he is a coward and bully I am merely dishing back to him his own style of posting

he can't stop it anytime being merely agreeing to be a vaguely civl but he claims outrage over the treament his daugter has recieved in merely telling the truth about her, but will not even agree to refirain form talking trash about people not even posting in the NG

Watch all the obese BEER BELLY'ed hams waddle on by in the parking lot flea market at the Hara Arena.

CLICKINZIE HERE: http://wa5kub.com

The camera was in operation today (Friday) and it's 2000% proof positive what the FDA has said all along about the rampant obesity epidemic in America.
(makes you wonder how many Big-Macs they sell this weekend especially in and around Dayton)

There is also an OPEN CHAT ROOM on the site where you can comment on the goings on. Almost as much fun as being there live.

Trust me folks, you'll see more middle-aged pathetic looking white men than anywhere else, possibly except being the local model train show or the next NASCAR event.

It took a phone call, plus several email messages, but we finally got CTITECH to remove N9OGL's internet access. His cartoon kiddy porn is now history.

We are currently after three other US sites which contain the same kind of cartoon kiddy porn, and one of them (a California site) has now attempted to go underground. In other words, they are on the run like the sicko cowards they are, but they won't be able to hide.

I won't give the URL of any of those sites, because I don't want them to receive any free advertising. My friends and I will continue to fight the good fight against cartoon kiddy porn and other net abuses. If you want to lend a hand, join us in the chat room at any Friday night at approximately 22:00 hrs EDT.

Look at this group of misfits. I mean, LOOK at it. What do you have? One or two Hams who have something of value to say versus ten or twelve social misfits with nothing to say?

You have complete Idiots babbling on and on about nothing, saying nothing, but repeating the same, tired and worn third grade comments about each other.

Mark cannot construct a cohesive sentence, and makes no sense while Wiseman wannabe's emulate this cowardly loser from West Virginia.

Mark "sees" Dave in each post, sees Dave in the shadows, around every corner, and cannot get past his fixation.

Wiseman, like Mark, "sees" Lloyd in each and every post and, like Mark, is unnaturally fixated on his stalkee.

Wiseman, it has been said, is a social misfit with no redeeming values. We know that.

Mark, like Wiseman, is but two steps behind and, like Wiseman, has little going for himself.

(note: Wiseman and Mark know not how to use a spell check program)

"Billy Smith" aka Lardass Lloyd Austin Davies of 710 S. Clinton St.
#203 Athens, AL is a loser!

Poor Woger. 30, 40, or 50 posts a day?
This simpleton 50 year old unemployed dude is a loser.
No life, no friends, no nothing save for a half dozen dialup accounts.

Walk cautiously, Woger. Hard to say when Dave may next come knocking on your door.
(of course you will hide)
"Knock Knock."
No answer.
"Knock Knock (again).
No answer.
"Knock Knock"
Roger heads for the back room and hides.

Three hours later Roger emerges from his closet, claims he wasn't home. He Actually there is less of the good stuff on eBay than there was 2 years

And then they compress the hell out of it, and for AM overmodulate the

Is there anything a person could say anonymously on usenet that is so horrible that you would drive 400 miles to stalk him at his house, knock on his door, and take pictures of him? Steveo (Steve is probably not even his real name) is a nutcase. He should be institutionalized. Nobody actually likes him; it's just that in some cases they hate his enemies more. The old saying "my enemy's enemy is therefore my friend" applies to Steveo. Could you see yourself hanging out with an idiot like him? There's no test for one important ham skill: typing. I didn't appreciate how important it is until I learned that one of my pro-Morse buddies does all of his sending with a computer. (He can send with a key but doesn't know where his is.) He says he copies with the computer, too, although he can follow along with the audio.

I asked around and found this practice is far from rare; I'm not sure "common" is the right word, though.

We also might want to test for basic language skills, including punctuation. While it's not always true, the disagreeable transmissions (and NG posts) often make the speakers/writers sound pretty ignorant.

But you don't stalk people, do you? And there is the question of how a young daugter died on his watch. Crop dusting accident? He might be as bad of a father as he is of a husband.

I also watched the HamventionCam today and I

Please note the date of these numbers - this is a delayed repost from early April, 2006

These are the numbers of current, unexpired
amateur radio licenses held by individuals
on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that
class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of April 2, 2006:

Novice - 25,614 (3.9%) [decrease of 23,715]
Technician - 278,690 (42.3%) [increase of 73,296]
Technician Plus - 40,534 (6.1%) [decrease of 88,506]
General - 133,682 (20.3%) [increase of 21,005]
Advanced - 72,819 (11.0%) [decrease of 26,963]
Extra - 107,768 (16.4%) [increase of 29,018]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 319,224 (48.4%) [decrease of 14,964]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 314,269 (47.7%) [increase of 22,351]

Total all classes - 659,107 (decrease of 15,685)

Note that these totals do not include licenses
that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES
or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses
are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

They are on 3.950 outgassing as usual with the same old tired bunch of rejects. Only bright thing is thi keeps them behind the microphone at home instead of out
at the Legion or VFW Post till 2 AM when they go home
drunk driving and wrap themselves around a tree or

True, but I must have counted close to 40 (fourty)
morbidly obese hams seated in those motorized Scooters that I saw zipping by the HamventionCam today.
Many of them stopped for the camera, got up mugged
4 the camera, then hopped back on and zipped away.
(funniest was the guy pulling a red wagon behind his Scooter that had a couple of big astron power supplies in it.
Guess he needed one to re-charge the battery ? (grin)

You mean the guy from Ypsilanti? I HOPE he does come on.
He's a true loon that's 2 cans short of a six-pack. Great fun to listen to fer sure!!

Joke time for the kids:

A tourist walks into a curio shop in San Francisco. Looking around at everything, he notices a very lifelike life-sized bronze statue of a rat. It has no price tag, but is so striking that he decides he must have it.

He takes it to the owner and asks, "How much for the bronze rat?" The owner replies, "$12 for the rat and $100 for the story".

The tourist gives the man $12 and says, "I'll just take the rat, you can keep the story."

As he walks down the street carrying his bronze rat, he notices that a few real rats have crawled out of the alleys and sewers and begun following him down the street.

This is disconcerting, and he e begins walking faster. But within a couple of blocks, the herd of rats behind him has grown to hundreds, and they begin squealing. He begins to trot toward the Bay, looking around to see that the rats now number in the MILLIONS, and are squealing and coming toward him faster and faster.

Concerned, even scared, he runs to the edge of the Bay, and throws the bronze rat as far out into the water as he can. Amazingly, the millions of rats all jump into the Bay after it and are all drowned.

The man walks back to the curio shop. "Ah ha," says the owner, "you have come back for the story?"

"No," says the man, "I came back to see if you have a bronze Mexican,
a bronze Muslim cleric, a bronze Republican & anything French.

They are on 3.950 outgassing as usual with the same old tired bunch of rejects. Only bright thing is thi keeps them behind the microphone at home instead of out
at the Legion or VFW Post till 2 AM when they go home
drunk driving and wrap themselves around a tree or
t-boning a carfull of kids at an intersection.

A "carfull" of kids? Out at 0200? Not likely.
Still, it is funny to listen to FAM (Father And Mother) carry on and on and on and....

I wonder if the Conspiracy Nut from Michigan will be on? He's a great source of laughs.

Let this be a reason to us all not to crosspost to other newsgroups.
Each newsgroup has its particular culture, and crossposting only serves to inflame people. So, even if you think that a particular topic has wandered enough to make it worthy of crossposting to a newgroup that more closely matches that topic, it's probably best to SEPARATELY post it over there, and not crosspost.

PS: I have posted this reply separately to each newsgroup. If I can do it, you can do it.

The endless "CWdebate" has poisoned the well to the point where any attempt at a meaningful discussion about the value of core competencies and basic common denominators devolves into name calling.

assuming this is coloist and you are just quoting then it just shows why the FCC needs to do what we more or less know (although the sense ofsome ham is something I realy in reading speculation over at qrz.com that code was going to stay after all) get it over and issue the R&O so we can start the long the no doubt long process of trying to get past

you never saw is not the same as I never posted indeed you claimed you had me killfiled if I was you would not know if I had posted something or not in claiming you know the contents of my post when I am in your killfile

you have to be lying about something that it is a obscure from of comication with interesting aplication indeed even I use it some (a couple of EME q's and lot of pc based DSP assitance as well for a bit of HSMS agina using computers a lot to flush out the signal)

Indeeed I confess a certain interest in spark stuff and would love to knwo if the tech exists that we could use spark again with hf clearly out a bit in some band without causing problems for other users (I would evenn write letters in favor of such an alocation were i convinced it possible

My wife has enjoy the anonity of the mode and made some 6m cw contat alas she was suffering flu duringthe last local testing sesion and boogled a test for it or I expect she have made put up the HF anttnea already foruse the mode

Yes steve get a good laugh my wife enjoys CW club memer find this mild ironic as do I

I can and have answered what inspires passion about Morse Code

what I can not answer is why that passion espresses itself so often in trying to ram the mode down the throats of others

You really need to type if you run cw over about 60wpm or so.. That was about my limit as far as sending fairly clean with a paddle. I never liked to type, so 55-60 wpm pretty much was the limit for me. Most all the high speed people used a keyboard to send. But I'd say the majority listened with their ears instead of using a reader. The brain is a better reader than most puter CW programs. Most don't handle noise very well. Once I hit 55-60 wpm on a paddle, I was stretching the limits. Past that, and it was pretty dang ugly... Slopsville. The keyboards could kick back and type about any CW speed with perfect sending. A decent typist can go over 100 wpm+.

I put the ball to a metal grinder and I could easily see an outer F layer and then the E layer. I couldn't find a D layer, but it was dark outside and there's not supposed to be a D layer at night. Neat how antenna's can be manufactured to do that.

Just passed my tech and General on Sunday so I'll be on the bands as soon as I find out my callsign and get an ionsphere for my antenna. I destroyed the old one on the grinder and I hear you need a good ionsphere to shoot good skip and hear far away stations. Reception has been really shitty lately without the ionsphere. I looked through the last 4 issues of QST and I couldn't find anyone selling ionsphere's. Where can I get one, or do I have to buy a whole new antenna?

Thanks, Jay

You don't need a new one. The old one probably got stuck in your coax by back-feed when you were grinding. Just get an RF brush and give your coax a few swipes and the ionosphere should pop right back out!

I'm getting fed up with all the spics around here, because most of them are illegals, and they're overrunning the city. Decent White folks can't live in peace in Winchester any longer.

I'm going to move down South and live with the niggers in Birmingham. They at least know how to keep the spics in line, and the sistahs know how to keep White men happy.

I'll agree that you don't have any "fake" degrees...Because you have NO degrees at all.

Your "degrees" are imaginary. A lie. Deceit. Like the rest of your life.

You won't name the institutions, the disciplines in which you allgedly were granted a degree, or when those degrees were accomplished.

In otherwords...Not a single bit of documentary evidence that any of your claims were even remotely true.

You've not answered why it is you chastise others for something you only get right 30% of the time yourself...And you're allegedly "married" to "her".

I'm not "nuts". Publically molesting the memory of a deceased child of a man you already allege to be dangerous and stalking you is "nuts", Mork.

What lying?

Show us "she's" a female.

Take a picture of the two of you...You holding the current copy of the front page of "USA Today" and her a sign saying "I Am Mork Moron's Wife"...THEN I will believe YOUR claims about "her" gender.

Be sure to follow ALL the instructions above, Mork.

Nope. She was the victim of aerially deployed defoliants.

Genetics had nothing to do with it.

Sure there is.

You allege me to be murderous, but then you make comments that you know are likely to incite a violent reaction.
